MEMORANDUM FOR: THE PRESIDENT
FROM: Jim McIntyre Jim
SUBJECT: Release of Federal Civilian Hiring Limitation Decision

I share your concern about the premature disclosure of administration policy decisions, and I have made a concerted effort to insure that my staff and I do not leak sensitive decisions to the press. Specifically, I did not discuss your federal hiring limitation decision with the press before your television address Tuesday night. Moreover, I have questioned my principal staff, and they have assured me that they did not discuss the proposed hiring freeze before your Tuesday telecast.

During my tenure at OMB, I have instilled in the entire OMB staff the principle that we are part of the President's staff and must never do anything to undercut you. In fact, we at OMB fully understood that the premature disclosure of your hiring limitation decision would encourage agency hiring before the announcement and would thereby diminish the limitation's effectiveness. Therefore, your comment on my October 24, 1978 memorandum about the hiring limitation concerned me: "Jim, In the future let me make a decision before it is announced to the press."

I am aware of only one article which might have prompted your remark. On the front page of the Tuesday, October 24, 1978 Washington Star (Night Final Edition), Philip Shandler revealed key details of the hiring limitation. Although Shandler's article mentioned me by name twice, it did not attribute to me any remarks on the hiring limitation. In fact, Shandler wrote that I "declined to talk about the anti-inflation plan." (See the underlined portions of the attached article.)

There were many administration and federal government officials attending the Civil Service Program Development Conference in Ocean City, where Shandler wrote his story. I spent one hour in Ocean City at the conference; my participation was limited to discussing the implementation of Civil Service Reform.

Again, I share your concern about premature disclosure of the hiring decision but do not believe that my staff or I were the source of leaks to the press.

MEMORANDUM FOR:

THE PRESIDENT

FROM:

James T. McIntyre, Jr. Jim

SUBJECT:

Limitation on Federal civilian hiring

A memorandum to the Heads of Executive Branch Departments and Agencies is attached. It follows up on the reduction in Federal civilian hiring announced in your anti-inflation address on this evening. A proposed press release is also attached.

OMB will issue implementing instructions. The hiring restriction applies only to full-time permanent employment. It does not include the other employment categories (such as part-time, temporary, and intermittent employees). This is necessary to allow agency heads some flexibility in meeting temporary peak workloads and to avoid negating our efforts to find more opportunities for part-time employment.

Recommendation

That you sign the attached memorandum.

Plan Faces Tough Debut

R PROGRAM FAILS

Informed sources said the guideline for wages and fringe benefits will aim at limiting increases to 7 percent next year, with some exceptions. That's the figure administration officials have worked with at least since early September.

But the sources said the guideline for nonfarm prices will be more flexible than the 5 1/4 percent figure key officials had adopted tentatively. Instead of setting a specific figure, the guideline will call on companies generally to hold 1979 price boosts a half percentage point below their average annual increases in 1976 and 1977.

HALF OF FEDERAL JOB VACANCIES MAY NOT BE FILLED

By Philip Shandler
Washington Star Staff Writer

OCEAN CITY, Md. — Federal agency heads will be allowed to fill only one of every two jobs vacancies under President Carter's anti-inflation package, informed officials said today.

A key element in the federal segment of the anti-inflation program will be an effort to reduce the total civilian federal work force — now about 1.2 million employees — by approximately 2 percent.

Officials said the 2 percent reduction will be achieved largely through the limitation on filling vacancies.

They said that in addition workers will be encouraged to retire early.

The limit on filling vacancies would be in effect for a year.

Top managers of the federal government from across the country are meeting here to discuss implementation of the recently passed civil service reform law.

James T. McIntyre, director of the Office of Management and Budget, addressed the conference this morning but declined to talk about the anti-inflation plan Carter is unveiling tonight.

Other officials provided some details however, in addition to the job limits, Carter is expected to announce that he intends to maintain a ceiling on pay raises for federal employees. He capped white collar pay increases at 5.5 percent Oct. 1, and Congress applied the same ceiling to blue collar wage raises. Even though surveys had pointed to justification for a white collar raise of more than 8 percent, Carter said he wanted to begin his anti-inflation efforts with the government's own employees.

McIntyre did say he intends to try to change federal agency spending patterns that critics consider wasteful.

"We're going to take a hard look at the last-minute rush" of spending, McIntyre said.

Judge Releases Reporter Jailed for Withholding Notes

HACKENSACK, N.J. (AP) — A jury today found Dr. Mario Jascalevich innocent of murdering three hospital patients, while a judge released New York Times reporter Myron A. Farber from a jail where he was confined for refusing to turn over notes in the case.

The jury of six men and six women deliberated for about two hours over two days after hearing 34 weeks of testimony. The state alleged that Jascalevich killed the patients during the mid-1960s by administering curare, a muscle relaxant.

After the verdict was read, Jascalevich embraced his attorney and said: "Thank God justice was done."

FROM: TIM KRAFT TK
ARNIE MILLER AM

SUBJECT: Administrator, National Fire Prevention and Control Administration

The National Fire Prevention and Control Administration, currently in the Department of Commerce, will be one of the agencies transferred into the new Federal Emergency Management Agency. The previous Administrator resigned effective October 1.

Mr. Gordon Vickery, who is currently the Superintendent of the Department of Lighting for the City of Seattle, has come highly recommended to us for the N.F.P.C.A. Administrator's position (PAS, Level IV). Mr. Vickery was the Chief of the Seattle Fire Department from 1963 through 1972. In that capacity, he was responsible for several major innovations including: establishment of the Medic I program which trained fire fighters in paramedic techniques, and the Medic II program, in which 200,000 Seattle citizens have been trained in cardiopulmonary resuscitation procedures. Both programs were pioneers in the field, and have since been acclaimed as among the finest in the Nation. In addition, Mr. Vickery implemented an Arson Squad in the City Fire Department. Again, this effort was among the first in the Nation, and has received substantial acclaim. Mr. Vickery, on his own initiative, initiated an affirmative action program that has resulted in a growth in minority employment in the Fire Department from one individual to over one hundred in the past ten years.

Mr. Vickery has the strong support of Senator Magnuson, Seattle's Mayor Royer, and virtually all of the National Fire Service organizations, including Howard McClellan, President of the International Association of Fire Fighters.

The appointment is also supported by the Commerce Department and Frank Moore.

RECOMMENDATION

Nominate Gordon Vickery to be Administrator of the National Fire Prevention and Control Administration.

COMMENTS ON GORDON VICKERY

Howard McClennan - President, International Association of Fire Fighters

"Gordon Vickery is the type of man we respect. He is a straight shooter and a good administrator. NFPCA needs leadership and Vickery is the man we think can provide it. His appointment would receive strong support among our membership."

Mayor Charles Royer - Seattle, Washington

"I've known Gordon since 1963. He is straightforward, a quick study, and an outstanding administrator. He did an outstanding job at the Fire Department, and has turned in a fine effort at City Light. I admire the guy, and his appointment has my wholehearted support."

Donald Flinn - Director, International Association of Fire Chiefs

"Gordon Vickery has impressive leadership capabilities. His willingness to be innovative is well known. His establishment of the emergency medical programs within the Seattle Department have been breakthroughs in the life-saving capabilities of the fire services. He is viewed with great respect and admired for his contributions."

John McKay - National League of Cities Staff

"Gordon has a good reputation as an administrator. The Seattle people have a great deal of respect for him. His appointment could bring a universal healing of wounds, as all of the fire service groups are supporting his nomination. His would be a fine appointment."

Wes Uhlman - Former Mayor of Seattle, Washington

"Gordon Vickery is both a locally and nationally respected member of the fire service community. As Fire Chief he presented a most impressive track record as a skilled administrator and able leader. In addition, he achieved the most successful minority hiring policy of any major fire department in the United States. In his capacity as Superintendent of public lighting, he has demonstrated an ability to transfer his administrative skills to a broad ranging variety of bureaucratic, administrative and conflicting demands. He is uniquely qualified to serve you and the Nation as NFPCA Administrator, and I strongly urge his appointment."

FROM:

SUBJECT: The Tax Bill

The Treasury officials working on the tax bill recommend, and we agree, that you call Senator Long and Congressman Ullman today about your decision to sign this bill. You should indicate that you are signing the bill despite a number of reservations, one of the principal ones being the deferral of carryover basis. Each year there are $20 billion in capital gains which escape taxation because the carryover basis provision has not yet been put into effect. You should indicate that you will not accept any reversal of the carryover basis reform, and that if they cannot prevent a reversal it should be put to you clearly and not attached to a veto-proof bill.

Treasury believes that it is a very real possibility that next year we will see a move to end the carryover basis. Unless you firmly indicate to Long and Ullman the importance of carryover basis to you, they may take the signing of the bill this year as a sign that the matter is not of overriding importance to you.

MEMORANDUM FOR THE PRESIDENT

FROM: STU EIZENSTAT SE
SUBJECT: Attached letter to Congressman Lester Wolff

Congressman Wolff has requested that you send a letter to him outlining some of the successes in the drug policy field over the last two years. Wolff is chairman of the House Select Committee on Narcotics Abuse and Control and his opponent has charged that the Federal Government's drug efforts are ineffective and that Wolff is in some way responsible.

I recommend that you sign the attached letter to Wolff.
Frank concurs.

THE WHITE HOUSE

WASHINGTON

To Chairman Lester Wolff

With the close of the 95th Congress, I would like to express my personal thanks to you and the other members of the Select Committee on Narcotics Abuse and Control for the valuable contributions you have made to our efforts to deal with the drug problem in the United States.

As you know, we have had some significant successes over the past two years:

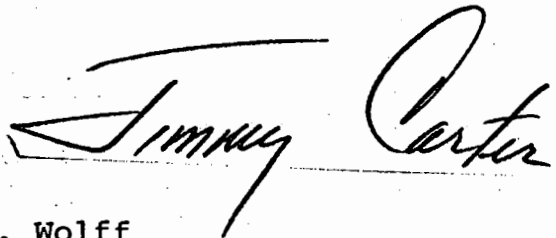

- . The heroin purity rate is at its lowest level, 4.9%, down from 6.6% in 1976.
- . Heroin overdose deaths are down 27% from 1977 and 73% from 1976. In 1977, 1,000 fewer people died from heroin overdoses than in 1976.
- . Our cooperation with the Mexican Government has brought about a 20% decline in the amount of Mexican heroin available in the United States.
- . Statistics indicate a steady decline in barbiturate and other sedative/hypnotic overdose deaths.
- . International cooperation has permitted us to work with other governments in seizing huge quantities of marihuana on the high seas.
- . With our encouragement, the United Nations Fund for Drug Abuse Control has been able to convince other governments to make substantial contributions, thereby reducing our total support to under 50%. I know you and other members met with Dr. Bror Rexed, Executive Director of the Fund, when he was in Washington recently. Upon his departure, I issued the attached statement supporting the Fund's efforts. I hope we will be able to work together to ensure an appropriate level of United States' participation in the future.

The work and encouragement of the Select Committee, under your dynamic leadership, was instrumental in helping record these successes. However, we are both well aware that the problem of drug abuse will not disappear and that energetic measures must be continued. I can assure you of this Administration's strong commitment to working with you and your colleagues in our joint effort to reduce drug abuse in our country.

Again, thank you for your assistance.

Sincerely,

STATEMENT BY THE PRESIDENT

For over 70 years, the United States of America has supported international measures to control drug abuse. Today, it is more important than ever to continue this support.

This Administration recognizes that drug problems cannot be solved unilaterally, but require concerted action by the world community. Drug abuse is exacting an ever greater toll on the citizens of developed and developing countries. It affects our economies, our societies and--most of all--our culture.

The United Nations Fund for Drug Abuse Control has played a central role in this international effort. Despite limited funds it has been remarkably effective in finding cooperative ways for nations to work together on this international problem. Today I am pleased to announce that the United States will contribute $3 million to the Fund in 1978. With the contribution, I want to extend my best wishes to Dr. Bror Rexed, the new Executive Director of the Fund.

The United States remains deeply committed to the cause of international drug control. We will continue to support the efforts of the Fund, the United Nations and other governments.

TIM KRAFT TK
JIM GAMMILL JG

SUBJECT:

National Historical Publications and Records Commission

The National Historical Publications and Records Commission is composed of seventeen members with the Archivist of the United States serving as Chairman. All members except two represent various agencies and branches of the Government and are appointed by officials other than the President. The two members appointed by the President must be outstanding in the fields of the social or physical sciences.

The purpose of the Commission is to make plans and provide support for the publication of historical documents; the Commission also is empowered to make grants to state and local governments, universities, historical societies, and other such groups.

The Commission and the Archivist are affiliated with the General Services Administration. Jay Solomon has recommended that you appoint a librarian to the existing vacancy; his candidate is John George Lorenz, Executive Director of the Association of Research Libraries, and former Deputy Librarian of Congress.

RECOMMENDATION:

Appoint John G. Lorenz as a member of the National Historical Publications and Records Commission as suggested by Jay Solomon.

Subject: Enrolled Bill H.R. 13597 - Solar Collectors for House Office Buildings
Sponsor - Rep. Mineta (D) California and 14 others

Last Day for Action

Purpose

Authorizes the installation of solar collectors for furnishing a portion of the energy needs of the Rayburn House Office Building and of House Office Building Annex Number 2.

Agency Recommendation

Office of Management and Budget

Approval

Discussion

H.R. 13597 would authorize the Architect of the Capitol to install solar collectors for furnishing a portion of the energy needs of the Rayburn House Office Building and of the House Office Building Annex Number 2. Before soliciting bids to carry out the project, the Architect would be required to submit to the House Public Works and Transportation Committee final engineering and drawings and final cost estimates for the project. A total of $3 million would be authorized to be appropriated to carry out this bill.

House Resolution 322, adopted on May 17, 1977, directed the Architect of the Capitol to conduct a feasibility study of using solar energy in connection with the heating, cooling, and hot water systems and subsystems of the House Office Building Annex No. 2, the Cannon, Longworth, and Rayburn House office buildings and related structures and other House office building annexes and related structures. In an April 1978 report, the Architect recommended that, for various reasons, solar collectors be installed only on the Rayburn House Office Building and House Office Building Annex No. 2 and estimated that it would cost $3 million to complete the project.

H.R. 13597 passed the House by a vote of 332 to 48 and the Senate by voice vote.

SUBJECT                Enrolled Bill H.R. 13597 -- Solar Collectors for House Office Buildings

THE BILL

H.R. 13597 would authorize the Architect of the Capitol to install solar collectors on two House Office Buildings. The total authorization for the project is $3 million.

The bill implements the findings of a study previously undertaken by the Capitol Architect to determine the feasibility of using solar energy for heating, cooling and hot water systems. Prior to soliciting bids for the project, the Architect must submit final engineering and drawings, and cost estimates to the House Public Works and Transportation Committee.

VOTES IN CONGRESS

Senate      Voice vote

ARGUMENTS FOR SIGNING

- The bill implements a Congressional study which determined that solar energy systems were feasible for two House office buildings for meeting a portion of their energy needs. This visible demonstration of the viability of solar energy should be helpful in spurring interest in this technology. The budget impacts are not significant, and some fuel savings should be realized.

ARGUMENTS FOR VETO

None

AGENCY AND STAFF RECOMMENDATIONS

OMB, we and Frank Moore recommend approval. No objections were raised by other agencies or senior staff.

SUBJECT: Extradition Treaty with West Germany

At Tab A is a draft message transmitting a new Extradition Treaty with West Germany to the Senate, seeking its advice and consent to ratification. The new treaty supersedes the existing treaty, and contains newly listed offenses, most notable of which relate to narcotics offenses and aircraft hijacking.

At Tab B is the State Department's summary of the Treaty's provisions.

The transmittal message to the Senate has been cleared with the Speechwriters Office.

RECOMMENDATION:

That you sign the message of transmittal at Tab A.

TO THE SENATE OF THE UNITED STATES:

With a view to receiving the advice and consent of the Senate to ratification, I transmit herewith the Treaty on Extradition Between the United States of America and the Federal Republic of Germany, signed at Bonn on June 20, 1978.

I transmit also, for the information of the Senate, the report of the Department of State with respect to the treaty.

The treaty is one of a series of modern extradition treaties being negotiated by the United States. It expands the list of extraditable offenses to include aircraft hijacking and narcotics offenses, as well as several other offenses not now covered by our existing Extradition Treaty with the Federal Republic of Germany. Upon entry into force, it will terminate and supersede the existing Extradition Treaty between the United States and the Federal Republic of Germany.

This treaty will make a significant contribution to international cooperation in law enforcement. I recommend that the Senate give early and favorable consideration to the treaty and give its advice and consent to ratification.

SUBJECT:

Jokes for tomorrow's trip

For Connecticut only:

It's customary to start out with a few jokes. But my favorite writer, Miss Lillian, used them all up on her last trip here.

I believe in the 2-party system. With the Republicans, <sup>out</sup> there wouldn't be anybody for us to look good next to.

There's a question whether to put Miss Liberty or Susan B. Anthony on the new dollar coin. My own candidate is Alfred Kahn, my new inflation czar.

Thank you, _____. Of all the witty, clever, compassionate, intelligent introductions, yours is certainly the most recent.

We've been trying to teach Amy the value of the dollar. But every day the TV news has a different report.

And we're going to have to find a better label for her now that she has reached the age of 11 or "a double-digit pre-teenager" as she calls herself. We don't let people use double digits around the White House anymore.

Congress recently restored full rights of citizenship to Jefferson Davis. After Camp David and the recent polls they have started to give me equal treatment.

We're trying a new system to clear up that trouble at GSA. Since we took over we have made them open the bids before they award the contracts.

I spent a couple of weeks up at Camp David recently. The air is wonderful up there. Everything thrives. I even noticed that my coattails got longer.

For Maine Democratic Dinner:

President Johnson used to say he liked small parties, and the Republican Party was just about right.

FROM: Stu STU EIZENSTAT, LOUIS MARTIN, ANNE WERNER, JACK WATSON Jack
SUBJECT: Sub-Cabinet Inflation Briefing

We recommend that you reconsider the possibility of having an inflation briefing for about 1200 sub-cabinet officers as soon as possible. The compelling reasons for having the larger group instead of only 200 in 450 EOB are:

- ° A group of 200 could only accommodate the assistant secretaries from the major cabinet departments, whereas a group of 1200 would allow us to include government officials from the smaller agencies (Export-Import Bank, OSHA, VA, etc.) as well as from the independent regulatory commissions (CAB, FTC, ICC, etc.).
- ° Many federal program operations are potentially in conflict with both overall objectives and specific elements of the anti-inflation program. We should not underestimate the usefulness of having mid-level managers across the federal bureaucracy "on board" in substance and in spirit.
- ° Federal managers at all levels make public appearances on behalf of the Administration. The proposed meeting would assure relatively uniform translation of the program and would reduce the chances of misinterpretations both in and out of the federal establishment.

- We would arrange a substantive briefing after which you could drop by for ten minutes.

RE:

Extension of Rail Emergency Board

Under the terms of the statute and Executive Order that you signed on September 28, the Emergency Board created to make recommendations to you concerning the rail strike is due to report tomorrow, October 28. In part because there are still unresolved disputes, the Board cannot complete its report by October 28. For that reason all parties, including the union, have agreed to a 45-day extension to the reporting period.

Under the extension the Board would file its report on December 15 and there would still be an additional 30-day cooling off period which would last until January 15.

You do not need to take any formal legal action to grant this extension, but it should be approved as a matter of policy. The National Mediation Board recommends that you approve this extension, and we agree. Justice also concurs.

12,000 crowd City Hall Square as Lynn salutes President Carter

LYNN — Upwards of 12,000 persons packed City Hall Square and thousands more lined a motorcade route as President Jimmy Carter personally offered his endorsement of Democratic candidates today.

His appearance in Lynn was the third stop in a four-state political swing that included rallies in Buffalo, N.Y., Hartford, Conn. and Portland, Me.

The quadrangle in front of City Hall was crowded hours before the president's scheduled arrival time, and the best vantage points along Lynnfield Street and elsewhere along the motorcade route went to persons who showed up this morning.

Building decorated downtown buildings, hand music blended with the steady din of excited conversations and politicians emulated news photographers and television camera crews in jockeying for the best positions.

It was the first time a sitting president appeared in Lynn since President Calvin Coolidge established a summer White House in the Security Bank Building in 1923.

House Speaker Thomas W. McGee, D-Lynn, was the official host to the president, who flew into Hanescom Field in Bedford from Bradley Field in Connecticut.

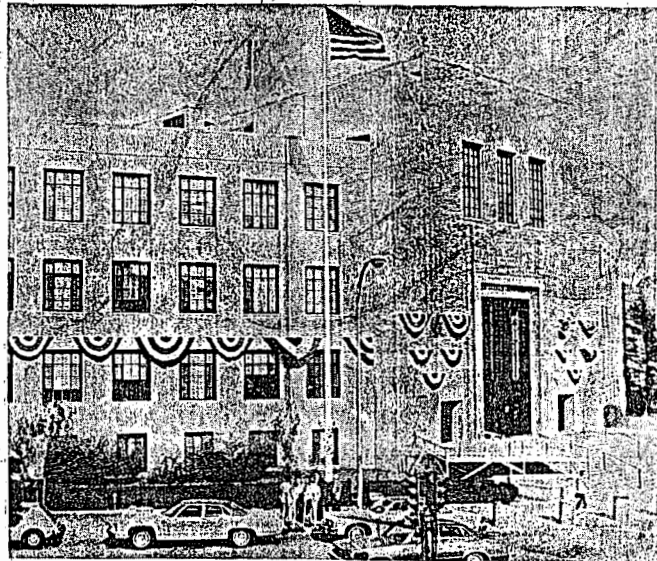

Accompanying Carter on that flight were U.S. Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, Cong. Paul Tsongas, U.S. Senate candidate James Shannon, the nominee for Tsongas' 8th Congressional District seat, and Peabody Mayor Nicholas Mavroules, the nominee in the 8th Congressional District.

The president was welcomed at Hanescom Field by Governor Michael S. Dukakis and U.S. House Speaker Thomas P. (Tip) O'Neill Jr., D-Cambridge.

Joining the motorcade were the candidates the president came here to endorse — gubernatorial nominee Edward J. King, his running mate, Lieutenant Governor Thomas P. O'Neill III and Tsongas.

While the governor greeted the president at Hanescom Field, he did not accompany Carter to Lynn. Dukakis has declined to endorse Edward King against GOP gubernatorial candidate Francis W. Hatch Jr. of Beverly.

Democrats throughout the Bay State have hailed the president's visit and endorsement as being of great importance in the U.S. Senate and governorship races, where public opinion polls indicate Democratic candidates have slight leads over their GOP rivals.

City Hall Square wears Presidential colors

Who planned the trip?

LYNN — What's involved in bringing the president here?

A lot of work by a lot of people. Virtually the entire fourth floor of the Holiday Inn on Route 1 in Peabody became a temporary headquarters for the President Carter advance team during the past week.

No one seemed to know exactly how many persons were directly involved in making the necessary arrangements, partly because of the tight security and partly because advance planning is handled through four separate organizational units.

Bob Liff, a Brooklyn, N.Y. native who coordinates news media arrangements, identified the four essential components as staff advance, press advance, security and communications.

Liff, formerly a reporter for the Seattle Sun, became an advance man for the president about a year ago and has participated in more than 15 trips, including Carter's visits to Bonn, Germany; a pair of Camp David stays and more than a dozen domestic trips — some of them of a political nature.

Expenses for the president and his staff are paid by the Democratic National Committee when political trips are made, Liff said.

Questioned as to how many persons are involved in advance preparations, Liff said it was impossible for him to offer an estimate because there are some security personnel "we never see."

"There are certain rooms here at the hotel that I can't get into," he said.

The security arrangements include the installation of special communications equipment to provide a constant and private communications link between the president and his White House staff.

Nancy Greene of Washington, D.C., daughter of a foreign service officer and Bob Kelly of Boston are two of the key figures on the staff advance unit.

They work with local and state political leaders such as House Speaker Thomas W. McGee, D-Lynn and Mayor Antonio J. Marino, working out details on the many things that have to be done to ensure an appropriate reception.

Security experts, in cooperation with local police, handle numerous functions, including a survey of possible routes to be used to enter and leave the city.

Generally, security officials prefer a route with a minimum number of intersections.

One of the most frequently asked questions about a presidential trip deals with the cost factor.

"I really don't know the cost," Liff said, "but I do know that political trips involve bills being sent to the Democratic National Committee, and that means it will be at least a month before I get paid."

"But I've never had so much fun in my life," he added.

Why Jimmy chose Lynn

LYNN — Why did President Jimmy Carter choose this city and not another community?

A lot of factors were involved in that decision, including the President's tight schedule and some nuances of Bay State politics.

Boston Mayor Kevin White is said to be miffed because Carter did not go to Boston.

The Hub was ruled out because of the political feud between White and Sen. Joseph Timilty, D-Boston.

Timilty, a key Carter ally during the 1976 campaign, was named by the president to the chairmanship of a special commission on neighborhoods.

Sen. Timilty, it was felt, would not welcome a political trip that gave Mayor White the chance to roll out the red carpet for the president and the opportunity to be identified with Carter.

The mayor and the legislator probably will be battling next year in a rematch for the mayor's job.

And then there was the problem created by the refusal of Governor Michael S. Dukakis to endorse the man who beat him in September, Edward J. King.

Carter is here today to endorse King and Cong. Paul Tsongas, D-Lowell. There would have been some awkward moments if Dukakis served as chief coordinator for the president's visit, and, now that Dukakis is a lame-duck governor, the ranking Democrat on the state scene is House Speaker Thomas W. McGee, D-Lynn.

McGee not only influences the Democratic State Committee but also enjoys some clout with the Democratic National Committee, and he has had a close association for many years with U.S. House Speaker Thomas P. (Tip) O'Neill Jr., D-Cambridge.

There were other factors in the decision to come to Lynn today.

The city is the largest community in the 8th Congressional District and Lynn voters could make all the difference in the world in a close fight between Congressional candidates Nicholas Mavroules and William Bronson.

Mavroules, the mayor of Peabody, was Carter's 6th District delegate at the Democratic National Convention two years ago and was among the first elected officials in the state to endorse Carter in the Massachusetts presidential primary.

Also given consideration was the fact that the Carter administration recently approved a $3.3 million Urban Development Action Grant (UDAG) for Lynn, providing an opportunity to cite Lynn's UDAG project as an example of federal participation in urban revitalization.

And Lynn's proximity to Logan International Airport and Hanescom Field neatly matched the timetable for getting the President back to the White House by early evening. That's how it happened.

'A real boost for Lynn'

By RALPH NELSON
Item Staff Writer

LYNN — There aren't many people around who remember the last time a President came to the city, and the general reaction of those in the government and business community is that the visit today by President Carter should be a real boost for Lynn.

As Ward 2 Councilor Vincent Lozzi put it, "It's quite a privilege to have the President visit Lynn alone of all the communities in the state."

"I think it is a reflection of growing interest in the city. It shows we have made some progress, and hopefully, we'll have a chance to tell the president about things the federal government can do to help us do more."

Councilor Raymond Reardon also spoke of the honor the visit represents, and Councilor Vincent Luise said he thinks it reflects the awareness of the Carter administration of both the importance of urban areas and their needs. Luise added the visit should provide an emotional uplift to Lynn residents.

Roland Theriault, executive vice president of the Lynn Area Chamber of Commerce, expanded on that theme, saying the Carter visit is important both for what it means to the people of the city itself and for what it shows to others about the city. The Chamber, by the way, has arranged to hang a banner, welcoming the president on building owned by member George Koukounaris which faces City Hall.

City Council President Charles Gaeta says he thinks it is appropriate that President Carter is coming to Lynn because he is standing for a lot of things which can help a city like Lynn. "The federal government is saying it must revitalize cities, and that is what we have been striving to do here," Gaeta said.

Preparations for the visit began in earnest Monday with the arrival of the White House advance team and Secret Service detachment.

Most of the local activities were coordinated from the mayor's office, with department heads becoming involved in various tasks.

Building Commissioner Arthur Coates, for instance, provided information about the layout of City Hall; space for use by staff and for the press; and help with arrangements for special telephone hook-ups.

Park Department Superintendent Eugene Dooley was responsible for overseeing the erection of the platform from which the President and other dignitaries will speak outside City Hall.

Department of Public Works Commissioner John Casey was involved arranging for street barricades, a flatbed truck and other related items.

Both the Police and Fire Departments have been involved in discussions with the Secret Service about various security-related plans.

While national and state committees and candidate committees are paying the major expenses of the Carter campaign trip, the city itself is paying some of the local costs.

It is estimated police overtime could run as much as $5,000, and there will be some overtime expenses for employees from various other departments as well. The city will pay for the platform and sound system outside City Hall. Stuart Davis, Mayor Marino's administrative assistant, said the total cost for the city could run about $10,000, although that is only a guess at this point.

There has not been anyone around City Hall complaining about the expenses, however, since most people agree the value of a presidential visit far outweighs the projected costs.

There was obvious excitement among those who had any role in the preparations.

Dick Fluke, for instance, is the owner of Richard's Sound and Recording, the Lynn company providing the sound system. He was showing more than a little pride about having the chance to set up speakers for the president but at the same time talking about how he'd pray during the whole time that nothing would go wrong.

Some of the City Hall workers during the week would joke about various things going on around them, but it was clear that most had caught some of the excitement themselves.

By Wednesday, a direct telephone hookup between the mayor's office and the White House had been installed for use by the advance team, and municipal secretary Claire Avadanian, normally cool and collected, jumped a foot the first time the phone, which was next to her, rang.

A lounge in the City Hall basement which is normally a favorite lunch spot for woman employees took on a different appearance as special telephones were installed for use as a press filing center by the expected horde of outside reporters.

Lumber was piled inside the City Hall lobby and the frame for the platform where the president will speak was in place Wednesday too. The planing for the floor won't be laid down until Saturday morning for security reasons.

Lynn's official gift to President Carter

Marino: Honor for city

LYNN — Mayor Antonio J. Marino is given to colorful expressions and bursts of enthusiasm, but the news that President Carter was coming to Lynn left him searching for words.

It wasn't really until the White House advance team arrived in Lynn Monday that the realization that the President was coming really sank in, but once that first meeting was held, the excitement was obvious on the part of both Marino and his staff.

Marino, as mayor, will be the official offering the greetings of the city to the various dignitaries, and that is an opportunity which makes him the envy of many a local politician.

While the Carter visit will be brief, and selection of the city as the site was based at least in part on some extraneous political considerations, the fact remains Lynn is the only Massachusetts city the President will visit on his campaign trip, and Marino thinks this will be a big boost for Lynn.

"It is a great honor for the city. There's no question about that," Marino said.

"It's really electrifying to think the President is coming here. It's an indescribable feeling for me personally, and I've been around long enough so I don't over-react to these things."

City Hall was a busy place all week long as the planning for the visit proceeded, and Marino said he was very impressed with the work of the Secret Service and other members of the White House advance team. "They are a bunch of fine young people," he said. "They fit in. They seem to belong here. The atmosphere has really been impressive watching them work so well with the department heads."

There is no doubt that the visit has made life a little more hectic than usual for the mayor and his staff, with a great many requests and inquiries from people wanting to know about the visit or somehow play a role.

Marino cancelled some of his office appointments during the week, but the Carter visit did not bring the normal routine to a halt.

There were out-of-town trips on various errands; bargaining sessions with unions; hearings on employees and the day-in-day meetings with department heads working on various projects which went on as usual.

Still, there was never any question that something out of the ordinary was happening.

Mayor Antonio J. Marino

U.S. holds key to Lynn revitalization

LYNN — The visit of President Carter today dramatically underlines the important role the federal government is playing in the efforts to revitalize the city.

Lynn, like many urban areas, has been suffering for years from a combination of old age and a changing economy which tended to pull people and money from the city to the suburbs and from the cold and blustery north to the warm and sunny south.

The problems of deteriorated housing, a declining industrial base and a declining population are beyond the means of local or state government to deal with alone.

While federal programs dealing with some of these troubles have been around for many years, it is only in the relatively recent past that major, concentrated attention on urban problems has been shown by the federal government.

One sign of that attention in Lynn has been the growth of the Community Development program since 1975 into a major tool for neighborhood preservation and housing improvement.

The proposed MBTA Blue Line rapid transit extension to Lynn, while apparently in some jeopardy, is another example of the important role the federal government can play in an overall economic development scheme.

The recent announcement of a federal Urban Development Action Grant (UDAG) of $3.3 million has set off a burst of optimism among local officials who think it may be the first step on the way to a complete overhaul of Lynn's downtown and waterfront.

The UDAG award will pay for the acquisition of the Vamp Building at Broad and Union Streets for use in an innovative development combining both residential and light industrial uses. There are also funds for the acquisition and demolition of other buildings for parking and some related area improvements.

The UDAG project is only the first of several lined up for the same area, with the others, including the Blue Line, and Urban Heritage Park plan and Lynn Harbor development efforts all at least to some degree dependent on federal programs.

Discussions are also underway with the Economic Development Administration for an industrial collaborative in the downtown loft building area, and, most recently, there have been some encouraging signs that the city might be able to attract federal funding for a proposed footwear industry research institute.

City officials who have pursued these various federal grants do not look upon them as handouts but rather as development tools which are available for communities which want to come to grips with their problems and are willing and able to bring together the public sector on the state and local level as well as the business and labor communities in a unified approach.

McGee: Proud for the city and me

Speaker Thomas McGee

By EARLE STERN
Item Staff Writer

LYNN — "It's the ultimate." House Speaker Thomas W. McGee, D-Lynn today served as the official host today for President Jimmy Carter, used those words to describe his personal reactions to the president's visit.

As the leader of the Massachusetts House, and as a senior member of the Democratic Party structure, McGee has been in the company of presidents and princes on many occasions.

But today marked the first time he has had the opportunity to serve in his own city as the host to a U.S. president, and McGee was plainly excited and delighted.

As he left his Pine Hill home for Hanscom Field in Bedford, McGee's thoughts became retrospective, focusing on the late Cong. William Connelly of Lynn, and wondering if President Carter, a student of history, might recognize that name.

As McGee sees it, William Connelly is the reason Tom McGee is the Speaker of the Massachusetts House, and the reason that he is the host today to a U.S. president.

Not bad, for a poor kid from the tenements of West Lynn who grew up in a neighborhood of hard-working, politically active people.

Billy Connelly was their hero, and while McGee was a teenager when Connelly died, it was the Connelly legend and the congressional influence within the Roosevelt Administration on behalf of the poor and working families that sealed McGee's future.

Somewhat, Tom McGee would get into the political arena to emulate the Connelly advocacy of the working man.

His path to politics was delayed by World War II and his Marine Corps service in the Pacific, but after picking up a law degree at Boston University, and after winning election to Lynn's City Council, McGee entered the Massachusetts House in 1962.

He was its majority leader six years later, and its Speaker as of July 1, 1975.

"Naturally, I'm proud to be the president's host today, but it's not that I'm proud just for me — I'm proud for my city."

"Look, how many cities or towns in the country get to play host to the President?"

"It's a great day for the community, and an opportunity for the president to see an older city that is being reborn with tremendous potential for growth in so many ways," he said.

McGee noted that Carter has spoken frequently of the need to revitalize older urban communities, particularly in the Northeast.

"Well, he's come to a city that is making that effort, and from the steps of City Hall he'll be able to see a part of it," McGee added.

The Speaker said he would tell Carter that Lynn represents the "it can be done" philosophy of economic revitalization.

"There are planners in Boston and Washington who come up with great plans and philosophies, but it takes local people, with local initiative, local pride and local support from their own business and government leaders to turn those ideas into reality," he remarked.

It was with these thoughts in his mind that Tom McGee drove to Hanscom Field to meet the president.

And one could not help but think that Billy Connelly would be justifiably proud today — for his city and for Tom McGee.

Why was Tommy picked for the official host?

LYNN — How did it come about that House Speaker Thomas W. McGee, D-Lynn today served as the official host to President Jimmy Carter?

Part of the answer rests in the fact that even before the September primaries, McGee ranked as the second most powerful figure in state government.

The governor ranks first, by virtue of his command of the executive branch apparatus, but Governor Michael S. Dukakis was upset by gubernatorial nominee Edward J. King and the governor's lame-duck status has given McGee some additional party leadership responsibilities.

On the federal level, U.S. Sen. Edward M. Kennedy is the ranking party leader, and 16 of the 12 congressmen in the Bay State are Democrats, but their power is split between Washington and their regional districts.

McGee's power, more appreciated by political scientists and students of government than by the general public, stems from the Constitutionally-mandated budgetary powers of the House — the power of the purse strings.

It is this authority that places the Lynn lawmaker in a position that is second only to the governor in the "realpolitik" world of state government.

McGee also has served as a conciliator and arbitrator between competing interests in Beacon Hill, earning a reputation as a political pragmatist whose primary concern is getting government to address the needs or problems of individual citizens.

A prominent Beacon Hill lobbyist described McGee as "a populist — more people-oriented than program-oriented."

It was a combination of his stature in the political hierarchy and his success in bringing together opposing factions that made McGee the natural choice to coordinate the president's visit.

He has had to blend the prerogatives of the president with the political needs of U.S. Senate candidate Paul Tsongas and gubernatorial nominee Edward J. King.

He has worked hard to ensure that the Carter visit would provide a boost for 6th Congressional District candidate Nick Mavroules.

And he consistently emphasizes the potential impact of the president's visit on the entire Democratic ticket.

"Speaking from a strictly partisan viewpoint, this is a good Democratic city. We may have our differences in the primaries, but when November comes around we're Democrats, first and foremost," McGee said.

The House chief noted that Carter trailed Sen. Henry Jackson in Lynn, 1,505 to 2,991 in the 1976 Presidential Primary, but when Carter became the Democratic nominee he out-polled then President Gerald Ford here, 21,400 to 11,500.

"So that's what I mean. We value the principles of our party and we appreciate the value of the president's support — the very same type of support we gave to him two years ago," McGee said.

Covering Carter: Another time, another place

By CHARLES McDONALD
Item Staff Writer

LACONIA, N.H. — That's right. That's where this story begins, not in Washington, D.C., or even Lynn.

This is the story of one man who is called an "advance man" for the president.

Brad Woodward was a radio newsmen for WENJ, Laconia, N.H., back in 1975. I was a radio newsmen for WLNH, Laconia, N.H., and you might say we were competitors.

Our paths would cross at School Committee meetings; meetings of the City Council down in Franklin, or the City Council in Laconia, which meets in a brownstone railroad station which also houses the Police Department and courthouse.

But anyway, back to Brad or Woodward.

My boss at the time was Bill White, and I don't know if he still works up at UNH or not. But during this time, President Gerald Ford was up for election, and every Democrat with a yen for the oval office was running in the New Hampshire primary.

Actually, we had just gotten over one of the wildest election battles in the history of the country — the battle of Democrat John Durkin with Republican Louis Wyman for a vacant U.S. Senate seat.

The election was so close it ended up in the U.S. Senate, where it became hopelessly mired in partisan politics, so it was held again, and Durkin emerged victorious.

But back to Brad Woodward.

Both Bill White and I were "carpetbaggers" — he from the west coast, and me from Massachusetts, so Brad had a natural leg up on us, and many contacts for news.

But somehow, White and Woodward met, and since White was looking for a place to live and so was Woodward at the time, they reasoned it might work out if they roomed together.

So both of them got a beautiful apartment in a lodge at Gunstock Acres, which is on the slopes of Gunstock Mountain.

Enter at this point the president's son, Jack Carter, who in those days would travel in front of Jimmy Carter, meeting folks, shaking hands, and talking about his father, former governor of Georgia.

Naturally, there were many responses in those days: "Jimmy who?" and Jack and his wife just continued along smiling and greeting people.

Now you have to realize that everyone from Sen. Fred Harris, D-Okl., to Ronald Reagan, R-California, were pressing the flesh, so people were jaded, so to speak, and weren't that excited when they met Jimmy Carter.

But back to Brad Woodward.

Both he and Bill White were impressed with Jimmy Carter, and as was Carter's fashion in those days, invited him to stay at their apartment.

The day of Jimmy Carter's visit up north to Laconia took place, and as Jack Carter had arranged, Jimmy Carter stayed overnight at Gunstock Acres.

Now, whether Carter knew it or not, the evening meal was filled with irony, and a certain degree of tension between the roommates.

As White recalled it the next day, the future president sat on one side of the table. At either end sat Woodward and White.

The rules were that neither tape recorders nor pads were allowed, but Carter agreed to answer questions for "background information."

Over each serving, each of the reporters tried to ask the important questions, with each trying to dominate the former governor's time for "exclusive" answers.

As White explained it, he was doing well during the salad and the main meal, but sometime after he passed the peas, the pendulum swung back in Woodward's direction.

Carter stayed the night, and both competing radio stations had "exclusive" stories on the air the next day.

But Brad was not long for Laconia, and when Jimmy Carter left town, so did Brad, working throughout the United States for the man he wanted to become president.

At the time, his move seemed a bit risky, but events have borne out his predictions. I should have been so lucky.

When I first arrived in Laconia, I was given advice by the respected executive of a newspaper in northern New Hampshire.

The executive, a Democratic Party stalwart, advised me that I shouldn't waste my time working for a radio station or newspaper when the next president was coming to New Hampshire.

He said if I wanted, he would put in a good word with that man, and I might have a chance of working on his campaign.

But I decided against it, and U.S. Sen. Birch Bayh, D-Indiana, had to get along without me.

Large security force guards president

By JACK BUTTERWORTH
Item Staff Writer

LYNN — The largest local security force in history was on hand today for President Jimmy Carter's visit to Lynn and the North Shore.

Lynn, Lynnfield and State Police added up to an estimated 300 officers alone, with agents of the Secret Service and Federal Bureau of Investigation likely to make a significant increase in that figure for the late afternoon event.

In charge of the federal officers was Thomas C. Smith, special agent in charge of the Boston office.

In charge of the Lynn efforts was Deputy Chief Daniel G. McSweeney, acting chief in the absence of Police Chief S. Craft Scribner.

Specific assignments were given to Capt. Carl Perillo, in charge of police at City Hall; William Manias, in charge of officers along the entry and exit routes; Frederick B. Silson, in charge of police surveillance of protestors were slated to demonstrate against United States business involvement in South Africa. In all, an estimated 125 Lynn officers were involved.

Deputy McSweeney was to accompany Special Agent Smith.

Fire Chief Joseph E. Scanlon Jr. was assigned to provide necessary fire and ambulance coverage for the visit.

Also on hand were Police Lt. John F. Hines, George A. Harney and John F. McDermott.

Of the officers on duty, an estimated 25 were auxiliary officers assigned to traffic duty under the command of John Smith.

An estimated 100 regular officers, some of them day shift men and some from the evening shift, were expected to run up overtime costs as high as $8,000.

Metropolitan District police offered their assistance to Lynn if needed. The MDC regularly patrols the Lynnway and Lynn Shore Drive and Deputy McSweeney said he was sure he would call on the MDC for men.

While most Lynn officers were assigned to foot patrol, there were two motorcycle officers on hand as well from the police motorcycle club, to run errands and provide mobile assistance to police efforts.

Both Lynn K-9 officers were on hand with their dogs, although the dogs were not expected to be used. The Secret Service has dogs specially trained to sniff out bombs and perform other special functions.

Regular police patrols were maintained during the visit so that the city would be able to handle any regular crime calls.

Six State Troopers from the Lynnfield Barracks were among the 50 hand-picked State Police officers accompanying the President today under the command of Capt. Robert Hunt of Framingham.

They were State Troopers George Chaisson, John Maloney, Brad Mullen, William Baker, Walter Butler and Albert Balestra. The troopers reported to Hanscom Field to meet the Presidential party when it arrived.

Lynnfield Police Chief Paul Romano headed a security force of 40 officers, including all 22 regular Lynnfield officers and the town's three special police. Also aiding the chief's efforts were an estimated 12 Peabody officers and "three or four" Wakefield policemen.

The special force aided Secret Service agents in guarding the President at the Colonial.

Long days of planning, climaxed by numerous meetings last week, began for local police a little more than two weeks ago when they first read about the visit in local newspapers.

In Washington, D.C., Secret Service publicity spokesman Jim Boyle's words gave a strong indication of the dependence the Secret Service places on local law enforcement personnel on official visits.

"The cooperation of local police is amazing," Boyle said, "and it's unvarying from New York City to Lynn. It's outstanding."

A hectic week for a police official

Deputy Chief McSweeney

LYNN — "This will be a hectic week I'm sure - but things seem to work out."

That was the attitude Deputy Chief Daniel G. McSweeney brought earlier this week to his duties as head of local police security for President Jimmy Carter's visit to Lynn.

With a force of 125 local police to be organized within five days, McSweeney might be excused for wondering at times just how it was all going to work out.

But McSweeney, known during his 30 years in the department as a dependable, hard-working officer, took that task and the duties of acting chief in stride.

With Police Chief S. Craft Scribner away McSweeney, who has a law degree from Suffolk University and has served as deputy chief for the past six years, seemed to have his hands full with a steady stream of traffic in and out of his office.

The last time a national office-holder came to Lynn McSweeney was a sergeant, on duty while Vice President Alben Barkley spoke on Market Street in 1952.

President and King meet in Colonial setting

BY MARY-ALICE KING
Item Staff Writer

LYNNFIELD — He's entertained kings and governors, judges and the Canadian prime minister's family in the past year.

But today restaurateur George Page was entertaining a president for a King.

And after two weeks of preparation which had his staff shuffling and reshuffling schedules as President Jimmy Carter's Lynn itinerary changed almost daily, Page had his Colonial restaurant ready for the $1,000-a-head fundraiser for his friend, Edward J. King, the Democratic gubernatorial nominee.

The biggest Democratic party fundraiser of the campaign season in Massachusetts, however, is an exclusive reception for the president who'll stop in for about a half-hour to shake hands and chat with Democratic party bigwigs and backers.

Less than 100 dignitaries and guests were to gather around 4 this afternoon in a small lounge at the Colonial for the affair expected to net more than $60,000 for King and U.S. Senate candidate Paul Tsongas and finance Carter's Massachusetts swing.

Page said it would be a stand up cocktail party featuring "elaborate" hors d'oeuvres prepared by head chef Paul Sweeney.

Page, an enthusiastic King backer says his friendship with the gubernatorial candidate dates back to the days when he owned the Logan-Hilton Hotel at the airport while King headed Massport.

His association with leading Democrats, including Speaker of the House Thomas McGee, plus the restaurant's proximity to Route 128, the exit route for the Carter entourage today, made the Colonial a natural choice for the fundraiser's location.

For Page the Carter visit is the highlight of more than 25 years of entertaining at his hilltop, country club restaurant.

"I'll be there to greet him at the door," said Page who chuckled about having to jockey for position at the entranceway to his own restaurant because the area will be swarming with secret service agents.

Page did not buy a ticket to the fund raiser although he is a King contributor.

"I'll be on hand as an employee and guest," he said this week.

Dignitaries invited as guests of honor include Speaker McGee, Cong. Michael Harrington, Sen. Edward M. Kennedy and Speaker of the U.S. House of Representatives, Thomas (Tip) O'Neill.

Just who the ticket-holders are is being kept secret by the King and Tsongas people.

"We never release the names of our contributors before a fund raiser. It's just not done," said Nancy Gullmartin, Tsongas' press secretary, who indicated that all 25 tickets allocated to the Tsongas campaign went quickly and the word is that King's workers had no trouble selling their 25 either. Another 10 were purchased by or for ranking Democratic candidates.

King and Tsongas spokesmen were also keeping mum on the size of the bill expected from the White House for Carter's travel expenses in this area.

"We really won't know until we get the bill," was all Gullmartin would say about the tab, which has unofficially been pegged at around $10,000 for Carter's three-hour swing through Massachusetts to endorse Democratic candidates.

Press coverage of the Carter reception at the Colonial today was limited to less than a dozen reporters and event itself, the spokesman said.

Security was tight at the restaurant today after nearly two weeks preparation by Secret Service spokesmen.

Edward Giamette, the general manager said the only stipulation the Secret Service put on the way the party was to be conducted according to Carter's spokesman who added that reporters would not be allowed to question the president. "They will be allowed only to cover the

Guarding the chief old hat to Lynner

LYNN — Thousands of Lynn area residents today got their first "in person" glimpse of a U.S. president, but for one West Lynn man there was no real novelty in being physically near the nation's chief executive.

The West Lynner is John J. Nerich Jr., 27 Trautagla Ave., a master sergeant in the Security Police unit of the U.S. Air Force Reserves.

For Nerich, President Carter's visit marked the eighth time he has been assigned to a president's security detail.

The Lynn native, a district manager for the Showcase Theaters chain when wearing his civilian clothing, is a former chairman of the Democratic City Committee and was a lieutenant governor of the Kiwanis Clubs of Massachusetts.

Nerich's first assignment to a president's security unit was in 1953, when President Dwight D. Eisenhower flew into Loring Air Force Base at Limestone, Me.

A few years later he was at Dow Air Force Base in Bangor, Me. in connection with a trip by President John F. Kennedy.

On two subsequent occasions he was stationed at Hanscom Field in Bedford when President Richard M. Nixon came to New England, and he also served at Hanscom for a 1966 trip by President Lyndon B. Johnson.

Nerich recalls giving a snappy salute to President Gerald R. Ford in 1976 when the president came to Massachusetts for Bicentennial observations.

Today's assignment for Nerich represented the second time he has been posted to a security detail for President Carter. The first occurred when Carter attended a town meeting in Clinton last year.

Working with Nerich today was another West Lynn resident, Carl Parsons, a U.S. Air Force tech sergeant.

When president flies it's with Air Force One

When President Jimmy Carter flies long distance on official business he uses a specially designed Boeing 707, designated Air Force One, that is always at his disposal.

Air Force One is a designation that refers to any Air Force aircraft that the president is aboard, although aircraft 27000, the 707 acquired by the Air Force in 1972, is the president's principal plane. The 89th military Airlift Group maintains a small fleet of aircraft for the president's use at Andrews Air Force Base, Maryland.

Col. Lester McClelland, of Masontown, Pa., is the pilot of the plane, which has a crew of 18. Crew members usually enjoy long tours of duty with the 89th. One crew member has served with the 89th since 1953.

The major differences between a standard 707 and the presidential jet are the sophisticated communications equipment and the design of the interior space. Presidential quarters, a staff compartment and a passenger compartment take the place of the usual passenger cabins.

According to a spokesman at the White House, the blue and white aircraft, with the United States insignia painted along the fuselage, costs $3,250 per hour to operate during a presidential trip.

President Taft visited Lynn several times

President William Howard Taft, who maintained a summer home in Beverly, visited Lynn several times both as president and as a former president. In July, 1911, Taft, Mrs. Taft and their oldest son, Charles, attended the morning services of the First Unitarian Church at the corner of Atlantic and Baltimore Streets.

The guest preacher that day was the Rev. Robert Collyer of New York City, a summer resident of East Gloucester, who had been a guest preacher at the Unitarian Church in Washington, which Taft and his family attended while in the capital.

President Taft and his party, including Secret Service men, motored from Beverly. His visit, according to newspaper accounts, was prompted by a desire to hear Rev. Collyer, one of the most eloquent preachers of that era.

Taft's visit to the Lynn church was unexpected by the congregation and was not announced until within 15 minutes of the opening of the service, when Secret Service men informed one of the ushers that the president would be present at the service.

According to an Item news story, it was decided to let his arrival come as a complete surprise to the congregation and the secret was kept so well that only two or three people in the church were prepared for his entrance into the auditorium.

The president arrived while the organist, Miss Alice L. Newhall, was playing the prelude, and he was ushered to a seat in the center of the auditorium by John R. Lazenby, son of the Rev. Albert Lazenby, the pastor of the church, who escorted the other distinguished guests down the left aisle.

The congregation stood when the President entered and remained standing until he had become seated.

After the benediction, the president stepped forward and shook hands with Rev. Collyer. He and his family left the church before the congregation had been dismissed.

It was Taft's first visit to the Lynn church. It had been originally planned to have him deliver the dedicatory address, but the new edifice was not completed in time for him to carry out the program.

The Item reported that Taft listened very attentively to the sermon, and did not appear to be aware that more eyes were looking in the direction of his pew than towards the pulpit.

In March, 1917, Taft, then a former president, spent the better part of 24 hours in Lynn, delivering an address at the Lynn Theater in which he declared that the nation was on the brink of war over outrages in Germany.

He was given an enthusiastic welcome at the theater, where he discussed a League of Nations to enforce peace after the present war.

Taft was the principal speaker for the International League to Enforce Peace.

Following his address, he was honored at a reception at the home of Mr. and Mrs. C. Neal Barney on Prescott Road. He was also honored the next day at a luncheon at the former Oxford Club where invitations were limited to 50 members of the League to Enforce Peace and the Whiting Club.

The president stayed overnight at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Barney, and at 10 a.m. the next day was taken by local officials and Mrs. Barney on a tour of the city.

His first visit was to the General Electric River Works, where he was met by Professor Elihu Thomson of Swampscott and other officials of the company.

At the plant, Taft expressed and showed deep interest in the construction of turbines; and asked many questions concerning mechanical construction. His hosts were surprised at his knowledge of electrical appliances and mechanics in general. He was at the plant for more than an hour.

He also paid a brief visit to the A. E. Little Co. He indicated interest in the stock department, particularly in the hundreds of styles and qualities of shoes.

Following the Oxford Club luncheon, he was driven to the E. W. Burt Ground Gripper factories in East Lynn, where he was given a pair of the company's Ground Grippers.

According to those who met with Taft, and the Item accounts of the day, Taft liked Lynn "exceedingly well."

Truman visited Lynn

It was a cold Sunday, Oct. 29, 1944, when Senator Harry S. Truman, then a candidate for vice president, visited Lynn to speak at Odd Fellows Hall on Market Street.

He appeared in Lynn under the auspices of the then Local 201, CIO, Political Action Committee.

Truman, according to accounts, was wildly received in the jam-packed hall, but declined to make a political speech because it was against his scruples to deliver political talks on Sunday.

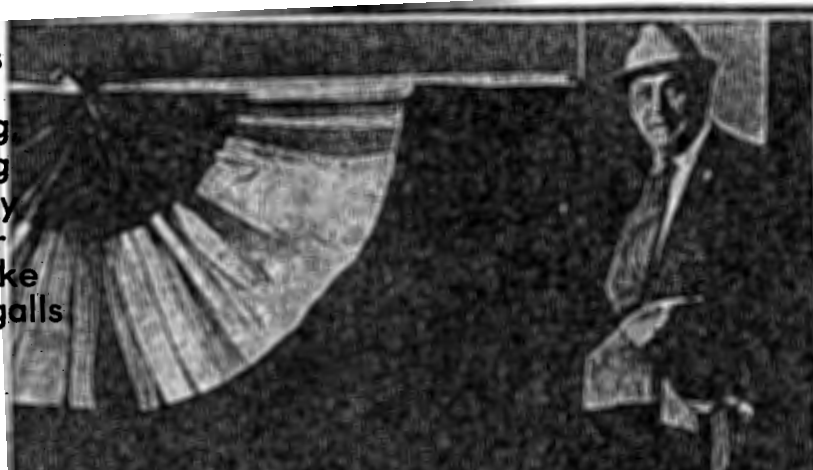

He commented that while he did not favor Sunday political rallies, he was aware it was customary in Massachusetts, and said: "I certainly think that on at least one day of the week, people should get together and consider the future of the country."

He also told the audience that he hoped the world was progressing toward better things and it would be a wonderful world if we could use our present production of things to kill to manufacture goods for the betterment of mankind instead.

Truman won election as vice president in November, 1944, as President Roosevelt won an unprecedented fourth term as president. On April 12, 1945, he took the oath of office as president following the death of Roosevelt. Truman was elected president in 1948, and served four years before declining to seek re-election. He died in 1972.

It's a big big day for Mike Ingalls

By BILL
Item Staff
MARSHALL — It's a big day for Michael M. (Mike) Ingalls, and he's had a lot of them over his 50-year career.
Ingalls, a song and dance man, comic, and show his promoter, has in late years devoted his energies to providing flags, bunting and other appropriate decorations for important events.
This past week, he got what has to be one of his most important jobs — decorating the reviewing stand and Lynn City Hall for today's appearance of President Carter.
Ingalls, who operates out of his Atlantic Avenue home, says that he's had much larger jobs in the presidential appearance.

Born and raised in Lynn, he looks back on his show business life with pride, saying it worked all over the country and with the very best in the business including Crosby and Vallee. Later, he produced and directed shows, mostly in and around the Greater Boston area.
He now considers himself semi-retired "and I'm in the public relations and advertising business. The decorating is just one aspect of the business."
He's decorated for thousands of events, mostly in the Greater Boston area and one of his biggest was in 1976, when he was appointed official decorator for the State by Gov. Dukakis.

During the visit of Queen Elizabeth and the Tall Ships to Boston, he had the responsibility of decorating the State House.
When the governor was inaugurated, Ingalls did the rigging and decorations for the ceremony and two inaugural balls held at that time.
But, he has never, until now, had the opportunity to decorate for a president.
"I guess you'd have to say that this is an important job. Everything had to be right. But then, we put out the best when we do the little guys, the stores, and fire and police balls," and, Ingalls provides flags for the homeowner who wants to express his devotion to what Ingalls describes as "the greatest country in the world."

Schools to join in salute to president

By BOB MARDER
Item Staff Writer

LYNN — President Jimmy Carter's appearance in Lynn today has touched off a flurry of activity in the city's school system.
The Lynn Public School Band under the direction of Francis Pagnotta has been rehearsing two special songs for the historic occasion throughout the week.
Announcement that the president of the United States would stop in Lynn prompted school officials and members of the band to order copies of "Hail to the Chief" and "Ruffles and Flourishes," the traditional music played for the nation's chief executive.
Depending on the exact length of the president's speech in City Hall Square, the band is also prepared to play "Happy Days Are Here Again," traditional music of the Democratic party popularized during the tenure of President Franklin Roosevelt and "Anchors Aweigh," which will be played in honor of the president's naval service.
Rehearsals were scheduled to continue until noon today at which point the band was scheduled to leave English High and head for City Hall.
For students throughout the system, the arrival of President Jimmy Carter has resulted in various assignments depending upon grade level.
Secondary students enrolled in the local and state government courses have been given the assignment of attending the president's City Hall address as have those taking Contemporary Affairs at Classical High.
The purpose of seeing President Jimmy Carter, however, is not simply to view a president in the city.
It's to evaluate crowd reaction and analyze the purpose of the visit.
"Of course it's exciting to think the president of the United States will be in Lynn," said Deputy Superintendent of Schools Edward Johns, "but we all have to be realistic too. It's a political event designed to strengthen the Democratic chances in next month's election."

"What we students to do is to realize exactly what is happening and to analyze it."
After the visit, secondary students will be writing reports and will be discussing the impact of the visit and what if anything it accomplished.
"The president of the United States is one of the most powerful persons in the world but we wouldn't be doing our job in the schools if we ignored the reasons behind the visit."
In addition to specific assignments for certain students, all social studies heads have encouraged their classes to attend today's speech and to be prepared to discuss it next week.
For elementary school students, the president's arrival has meant projects of every size and description.
A scrapbook has been assembled which contains poems, drawings and letters done in honor of the president's visit and plans call for the book to be presented to the president as a gift for his 11-year-old daughter Amy.
In a cover letter prepared by Deputy Superintendent of Schools George Laubner to Amy, Laubner wrote in part, "Some children wanted to write letters to tell your father how happy they would be to see him. Others suggested that poems could be written."
"We have put some of these activities into this scrapbook so that we may share with you the joy we felt when the President of the United States visited our city."
Each of the city's 20 elementary schools supplied a variety of letters, poems and drawings for possible inclusion in the scrapbook which was the idea of Mrs. Molly Toman, a fourth grade teacher at the Brickett School.
A poem written by Edith Dockery of the Lewis School said in part, "When I meet President Carter what do I feel? I feel happy, excited, delighted and joyful."
Scott Simard, a fourth grade student at the Harrington School wrote the president a letter which said, "When you're finished with your speech, what will you be doing? If you sleep overnight at my house, we can go to church Sunday and pray for peace."

"After that we can go get something to eat and you can have it your way."
Among some of the hundreds of projects submitted for the scrapbook were cut out tracings of hands extended in friendship and signed by students at the Shoemaker School, a history of Pine Hill prepared by students at the Sewell-Anderson School, a small scrapbook containing letters and poems done by students at the Lynn Woods School and a three-dimensional drawing of the Lynn Mall done by students at the Aborn School.
Each elementary school in the city submitted a host of drawings and the like.
In addition, certain classes organized special events. Fourth grade students at the Cobbet Elementary School under the direction of their teacher Mrs. Georgia Roache composed a song in honor of the president's visit.
Special education students at the Clinical Nursery Program at the Ingalls School prepared a surprise gift box for Amy Carter under the direction of Jeanette Curuby, Robert Barrasso and Joan Knight.
Included among the gifts were a happy faced cookie, a Halloween pumpkin, a special picture book and a plant potted in Lynn soil.
Other class projects included a large mural prepared by students at the Ingalls School depicting the key of the city being presented to President Carter and a huge sign entitled "Hail to the Chief" prepared by art students at Classical High under the direction of Robert Moody.
That sign will be displayed in City Hall Square during the president's address.
School officials have also stressed to all students in the system that they attend today's festivities with their parents and according to initial responses, it appears highly likely that many of the 15,000 students in Lynn will be in City Hall Square to see and listen to President Jimmy Carter.

Dear Mr. President:

We join our fellow residents in welcoming you to our community.

Despite the brevity of your stay in Lynn, we know you have sensed the contrast between the lush green suburbs and modern industrial parks you whisked by on Route 128 and this area's core city.

And although you do not have the time to witness the problems of this city at first hand, they vary little from other old industrial centers you have visited.

We believe the urban policy you have set to encourage accelerated rejuvenation of cities such as Lynn is on solid footing, and is beginning to produce defined results.

Lynn is excited about the prospects of its $3.3 million Urban Development Action Grant, which you recently approved. We are seeing tangible results from Community Development grants which have been translated here into building renovation, home repair, new sidewalks and other neighborhood improvements.

As you spoke from City Hall steps you looked directly at some of the venerable buildings of this city, crying for rehabilitation. We hope that you will sign the tax law before you, which includes an exciting 10 percent investment income credit for renovating such commercial and industrial structures.

But as there is much more which needs to be done in the nation, there is much more needed here. While 1978 has been labeled "The year of the citizen," we need a commitment which is consistent and durable in theory and in application.

Lynn and the commuting North Shore needs your help in breaking local extension of rapid transit free of federal foot dragging. The planned extension of the Metropolitan Bay Transit Authority's Blue Lynn to Lynn provides a vital link in this city's rejuvenation, in addition to reduction of congestion in Boston, and energy conservation.

The North Shore needs the continuing commitment of your administration to the survival of the footwear industry, not by unreasonable tariffs, but by incentives to direct competition and reasonable assistance to modernization. In the past two years the Commerce Department has made a real beginning. It needs your encouragement.

On behalf of some 12,000 employees of the General Electric Co. locally, we thank you, Mr. President, for agreeing with the congressional decision to proceed with the F-15 aircraft, powered by the Lynn-built F-404 engine.

In each of our names, punctuated by those of Jewish and Arabic heritage, we offer our community's deep sense of gratitude for the progress of Camp David.

And while day by day, and issue by issue, we will continue to look across the road at each other many times, the spirit of your devotion to this nation will never be in question.

Thank you, Mr. President.

Today is Lynn's day in the sun

It may be just another campaign stop for Jimmy Carter, but for one of the country's older cities, the presidential visit will be better than a swig of Geritol.

It has been a long, long time since Lynn has played host to a real, live president. It was Calvin Coolidge, real perhaps, but not too lively.

A couple of candidates, Dwight Eisenhower and John F. Kennedy, campaigned in Lynn prior to winning the presidency.

Thus, it is only natural that the city has been a little nervous since that first announcement that President Carter had chosen Lynn as one of the sites for his whirlwind political tour.

After all, even the heart of a more-sophisticated New Yorker skios a beat at the approach of a Chief Executive.

The president has been having his troubles in the rating polls, and so has Lynn, so today's meeting is a natural.

Carter recouped some prestige in his handling of the Camp David peace talks between Israel and Egypt but he faces other problems on the domestic front. He is also well aware that a lot of Democrats would rather have Ted Kennedy as their presidential standard bearer in 1980.

Thus, he is getting around the country more, going to bat for those Democratic candidates who will have him and presenting an image of an energetic president well-versed in matters foreign and domestic.

Lynn, which typifies that older American city in need of rejuvenation, is also looking to pull out of a long slump and the president's visit, brief though it may be, should serve as a helluva morale booster.

For one day at least Lynn will definitely be on the map.

The president's trip has been labeled "political" since he will use the rostrum on the City Hall steps to extol the virtues of King, ATsongas & Co.

But, to countless thousands of Lynners and non-Lynners of all political persuasions, the trip will be perhaps that once-in-a-

Staff Commentary by Jim Tagalakis

Lifetime opportunity to see and hear a president of the United States.

The president's greeting in Lynn will be no different than those he has received elsewhere — friendly citizens waving, children holding tiny flags, homemade signs of welcome and, to emphasize that the president heads the world's largest democracy, a demonstration against U. S. foreign policy.

From the steps of City Hall, President Carter will deliver that top endorsement of the Democratic ticket, a speech he has given on numerous other political occasions and one where only the names of the candidates are changed.

But, no matter. It will still be a big day for Lynn.

To the Secret Service agents and presidential aides, the Lynn stop will be but another speck on the president's political itinerary map. But to Lynners it will be a rare day in the sun, one to be cherished forever.

Thoughts at Large:

• Partly because the U.S. invests half of its research and development budget in military projects, in the last half-dozen years patents granted to foreign residents here are now more than one-third of all U.S. patents granted. (And foreign residents represent far less than 1 percent of our total population.)

• The so-called "welfare state" combines the worst elements of capitalism and socialism by penalizing the profit system more than it offers any permanent relief to the underprivileged. (A "mixed economy" should be an optimal mix, not a minimal one.)

• Genuine equality between men and women — that is, social and emotional equality, not just economic or political — will be achieved only when men begin to view sex as something else than a matter of conquest and pride, thus allowing women to view it as something else than a matter of security and productivity.

• President Carter seems to be following the unproductive tendency of his predecessors and paying too much attention to the polls and the "trends," when he should be attending to Winston Churchill's warning: "The nation will find it very hard to look up to leaders who are keeping their ears to the ground."

• Most of the ferment in public education today springs from the fact that the schools are being asked not only to make up in a hurry for their own defects but also to compensate for the failures of society as a whole — and they can scarcely do the first job, much less the second.

• We seek superiority only when we are denied equality: "black" would never have been proclaimed as especially beautiful if bigots had not at first denigrated it as ugly.

To know why, you have to know the players

Lynn?
Why Lynn?
In the Byzantine world of Bay State politics it is necessary to understand first why the president of the United States is not in Boston, but Kevin White is, and why the president is in Lynn, but the governor isn't.

While the community is honored and delighted with the president's presence, in the irreverent borders of this column it is more illuminating to explain why.

It all started with a guy by the name of Ed King, who knocked Mike Dukakis out of the royal gubernatorial box. That was not in the program and it irked the lieutenant governor no end. Thomas P. O'Neill III forgot that he was married to King by the solemn declaration of the Massachusetts Constitution. King couldn't dump O'Neill, and O'Neill couldn't get elected without King. Just one vote for the pair. No more split tickets here.

O'Neill made a fuss ... publicly ... about philosophical differences with his unexpected bunk-mate. He refused to endorse him, which was very similar to cutting off his own running legs. The lieutenant governor, simply, blew it, adding Storno to the defection fire of liberals.

The political judgment was made ... correctly ... that King would require some high-powered support to make it to the right side of Nov. 7.

Fortunately for King the lieutenant governor has a father who is better at mending fences, and who has, as one would say, some leverage in the White House.

That gets the president on Air Force One headed for Massachusetts. Now what?

Boston would just not do, because Boston is Kevin White, and Kevin White's political arch-rival and potential opponent the next time around is Sen. Joe Timilty. Timilty is Carter's man. It would not be nice to give Kevin such an unfair political advantage as marrying the president in public would offer.

Lowell Salem? Pittsfield? The question was politics, not logistics. Who is the leader of the Democratic party in Massachusetts? Not the lame-duck Duke. Not the retiring Senate president, nor the new one, who is too new. The ruling power is House Speaker and national committeeman Tom McGee. Where does Tom McGee live? Where is the president coming?

It didn't take more than 12 seconds for the notorious currents of Massachusetts politics to be set in motion. The opportunities!

Lynn Mayor Tony Marino's media opportunity was to introduce Mike Dukakis who would introduce somebody else who would ... but then McGee, in the middle of a press conference, told Tony that the governor would welcome the president at Hanscom Field, but would not come to Lynn. God, why would the governor want to leave the mayor with nothing to do when the president is on his own City Hall steps?

Politics. Guv could welcome the president to the Commonwealth on neutral turf. That's OK. But he couldn't come to Lynn, because that's where the president was going to endorse Ed King. And Dukakis won't endorse Ed King, so Marino was left looking for someone else to introduce, who would introduce ...

The mayor is the loser in this whole thing. His treasury gets stuck with all sorts of costs that won't get sifted out and passed along to the King and Paul Tsongas campaigns and the National Committee. On top of that the whole City Council is miffed. The members wanted the president's speech inside the auditorium where they could claim their traditional seats, which just happen to be directly below the speaker's lectern. The mayor took away the only chance in their lives to bask directly in the light of His reflected smile.

For others, there were still avenues to research, currents to follow. There was a chance to be in the reception line at the airport, or even better, to get on Air Force One, to be seen getting off Air Force One.

And the president's limousine! Count the seats. There were so many strings being pulled at the same time in diverse directions it looked like Pinocchio had run amok in an amateur puppeteer's convention.

The old pros with the president's advance team, who have been through a dozen or more of these expeditions already, were beginning to understand the peculiar reputation of Massachusetts politics.

Senate hopeful Paul Tsongas, challenging Sen. Ed Brooke, wasn't having much trouble because his committee is picking up half the bill for the 135-minute Massachusetts adventure.

But congressional candidates Mavroules and Shan-non were slightly further down the ladder. They had to fly out of Massachusetts ... to Bradley Field in Connecticut to be precise ... so they could fly back into Massachusetts to be seen arriving with the president.

The limousine dilemma had not been resolved when I was finally forced to stop watching and start writing, but the worst fear was that McGee would grab the chance, evict the Secret Service, and race that beautiful black machine down Route 128 open throttle, personally delivering Jimmy to his hometown.

It has been fascinating, for the Carter team, finding out just how fast the currents of Massachusetts politics run, and just how tricky. When the advance men took the trip down the Colorado they only faced water and rocks. In Massachusetts they wearily believe they have been producing a re-take of Jaws.

CHUTZPAH

The requests put to the Carter advance team have been legion, but the best in the Chutzpah department goes to a radio station which asked that, as long as the president was going to be around, would he mind hosting the station's telephone talk show.

U.S. aids P.L.O.

To The Item Editor:

The United States has agreed to contribute some $100,000 to promote the Palestinian Liberation Organization. Namely a film is being prepared by the United Nations to "promote Palestinian Rights" and create a moderate image for the Palestine Liberation Organization in the United States and other western countries.

As a matter of fact the UN is spending $260,000 on this project which will not only include the film, starring "Yassir Arafat" but there will be pamphlets and a newsletter as well. The U.S. share is $100,000.

When word reached the U.S. Senate, they voted a cutoff of funds for this project. However, the State Department, pressured Congress and the money has been given.

The argument they used was that precedent had been set some years ago when the U.N. was authorized to show the evils of apartheid in South Africa.

I protest the State Department's action and urge every reader of this column to write to the State Department to condemn their intervention and to the President to halt any contribution. We pride ourselves in a democracy. We elect our government officials. They are supposed to be the "servants" of the people, but they are apparently operating under a misapprehension where the State Department is concerned.

A terrible mistake

To The Item Editor:

We have just buried our beautiful 18 year old daughter. Her life was snuffed out in a tragic auto accident in which all three teenage occupants of the car were killed instantly.

Lowering the drinking age from 21 to 18 has proved to be a terrible mistake and it has caused the ruination and death of many of our youth. We now have alcoholics as young as 13 years of age.

I'm convinced that the vast majority of the people in this State are in favor of raising the limit back to 21. Unfortunately, agreeing amongst ourselves doesn't accomplish anything. We now have an excellent opportunity to vote for representatives, senators and a governor who are in favor of the 21 year age limit.

Publicize alcohol results

To The Item Editor:

Alcoholism is a major scourge in modern society — we all know that, but what is the press doing to put the whole story of alcoholism together?

Warren Breed and James B. DeFoe of the Scientific Analysis Corporation of San Francisco conducted a study of American newspapers to find out. They sampled 153 issues from 31 newspapers during May, 1977, representing large, medium and small markets. Breed and DeFoe found that the papers are covering alcoholism in the abstract very well. Local and national experts are quoted about the hazards, waste and loss due to alcoholism, and other features are timely.

What they fail to do, according to the study, is to report the frequent involvement of alcohol in serious auto accidents and crimes — an involvement that produces a waste of thousands of lives and billions of dollars a year.

Concerned citizens call on you, as members of the press, to report this shocking relation. This story has not been told forcefully enough. As the authors of the study conclude, we cannot deal with a problem until we recognize it — and the press can help us to see this one.

In the spirit

To The Item Editor:

If we are to remain free against those who oppose everything that is good in our country, it is important that we elect candidates having the spirit of Americanism demonstrated by the valiant signers of the Declaration of Independence.

Whittaker Chambers said there has never been a society or a nation without God. But history is cluttered with the wreckage of nations that became indifferent to God, and died.

Sign-in system

To The Item Editor:

This is an open letter to the Mayor or any power that be. I would like to have some sort of rule passed, for all rooming houses and apartment houses that have elderly, disabled or blind people who live alone, sign in and out when they leave. I think that a lot of lives could be saved. If they are not on the book, the person in charge can find out why that individual has not signed. I think that there would be less tragedy if this is done.

Item Staff Writer
LYNN — Two Roosevelts and a Coolidge honored with visits in the past.

merica had just emerged from the Spanish-American War and launched itself as a world power the 26th President of the United States, Theodore Roosevelt, made the first of his two visits to Lynn Aug. 1902.

"eddy" had established a charisma hardly appreciated by any other statesman in our history. Newspaper accounts of his gallant charge up San Juan in Cuba, his love of the great outdoors and his reputation of "roughing it" had a male-dominated emulating him. men were also captivated by his charm, graciousness and high level of morality, although a place at that time was "in the home" and she not receive the right to vote for another 17 years. Theodore Roosevelt's visit to Lynn and particularly Nahant estate of the then powerful Sen. Henry Lodge had as its purposes political gain for both sides and Lodge.

He urged the President to make the visit to his chances for re-election at a time when a foe had come forward, while Roosevelt sought support on construction of a canal across the isthmus of the Isthmus of Panama. Congress appropriated $180 million to purchase strip 10 miles wide across Nicaragua and Ica, economic backing for the French enterprise Colombian province of Panama was withdrawn. French approached the United States to sell its in the Panama route for $40 million.

s of thousands of boys and men, all wearing the tan derbies or the golfer-type caps of that day, strained against rope barriers guarded by scores of policemen as the President doffed his derby to the deafening roar of approval, and made his way to the waiting carriage of Sen. Lodge, who greeted him warmly.

Escorted by Troops F and G, Massachusetts Volunteer Marines, and a Lynn police detachment, the carriage, followed by carriages carrying Lynn and Nahant municipal and civic leaders and captains of industry, wended its way toward the beach road to Nahant.

Roosevelt remained at the Lodge mansion overnight and the following afternoon road with Lodge to the Nahant Town Hall where he spoke to a mammoth gathering. Clippings of that day fail to relate what he said.

Roosevelt then boarded a train for Boston, where he delivered a major speech that night.

Theodore Roosevelt's next visit to Lynn was indeed brief.

It was made between 8:22 and 8:23 a.m. on April 12, 1912.

At odds with hand-picked successor to the Presidency, William Howard Taft, Roosevelt broke with the Republican Party to run as the newly-formed Bull Moose Party's candidate for President.

The Lynn visit was one of a dozen whistle stops which he made along the Portland, Maine, to Boston train that morning.

Despite the early hour, 10,000 Lynners filled Central Square just below the windows of The Item Building to greet and hear Teddy.

Their enthusiasm didn't matter, however, for Roosevelt's candidacy effectively split the Republican vote, assuring the election of Woodrow Wilson.

President Calvin Coolidge spent three summer months in the estate which is now the Marian Court secretarial school on Little's Point, Swampscott in 1928.

True to his introverted nature, the President made only infrequent trips to Lynn and Salem and was more often seen aboard the presidential yacht anchored off Marblehead to watch the sailboat races.

He conducted several, rare outdoor press conferences and took part in a flagpole dedication with the late Cong. William P. Connerly Jr. at a Lynn school. The President and Mrs. Coolidge told the press they enjoyed the Swampscott visit and would return but they never did.

President Franklin Delano Roosevelt came to this area in mid-June 1938 for the Nahant wedding of his son John to Marion "Anne" Lindsay Clark of Nahant.

The wedding took place June 18 of that year at the Nahant Episcopal Church. The service was performed by the Rev. Endicott Peabody who had performed the marriages of all Roosevelt sons as well as the President himself.

A chronicle of that day reports that Roosevelts filled the 13 front pews of the church.

Seven hundred attended the gala reception at the Nahant Country Club. John and Anne Roosevelt had four children, including Sally who was killed in a horseback accident. The couple eventually divorced and John remarried. Anne Roosevelt lived her final years in England and died a number of years ago in New York.

Franklin Delano Roosevelt returned to the North Shore in 1940, again aboard the yacht Potomac. The yacht docked at Tudor Wharf, Nahant, as 400 townspeople stood in awe watching the popular President's expressions as he viewed his grandchild, Haven Clark Roosevelt, for the first time.

The President responded to the cheers of the multitude with his famous smile and a wave of his soft hat.

Gen. Eisenhower flashed famous grin in 1952 Lynn visit

Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower, later to become the nation's 34th president, appeared in Lynn Oct. 21, 1952, in an election campaign swing through Greater Boston. Speaking to a crowd of 15,000 on Lynn Common, the commander of the allied forces in World War II, told the gathering: "The new Republican party which I shall lead into office will work for what is right for all of the American people, and will give fair and friendly justice to all."

Amidst the enthusiastic cheers of the Greater Lynn people who not only filled the Common in front of the bandstand but overflowed onto adjacent sidewalks, Eisenhower guaranteed that "under the new Republican party, there will be no breadlines in Lynn."

The Lynn rally was a climax to the general's day, which opened with rallies in Lowell and Lawrence and included a triumphal tour of Greater Boston, including an address to an estimated 100,000 people on historic Boston Common.

Eisenhower was presented a pair of men's slippers at the Common by Harry Litvack on behalf of the Newhall Slipper Co. of Lynn.

When Eisenhower mounted the bandstand at Lynn Common in response to the repeated shouts of the throng, "Give Us Ike," he acknowledged that it had been a heart-warming day.

"I am overwhelmed," he said. "I have not received in any part of the nation the welcome you have given me in Massachusetts."

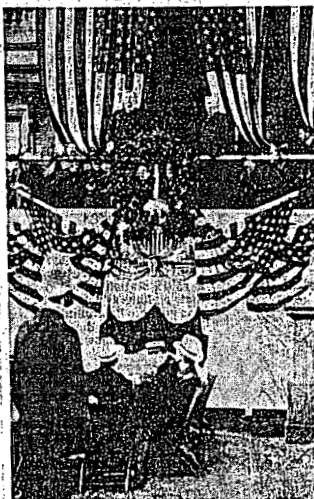

Eisenhower said he was leading a new American crusade "for decency and incorruptibility in public life." He said unity was the greatest need of the nation.

Following his speech, Eisenhower's motorcade took him through City Hall Square, down Central Avenue, to Central Square and through the heart of the city en route to Logan Airport in Boston.

Eisenhower, according to reporters at the event, showed no sign of fatigue and flashed the same infectious grin and waved his arms to the crowds on the sidewalks.

In 1963, Eisenhower, who had left office in January, 1961, came to Marblehead on Thanksgiving Day, where he and his family were dinner guests of Attorney and Mrs. Raymond W. Ellis at their Bradley Road home. He motored to Marblehead from Exeter, N.H., and spent the entire day in town unknown to newsmen and residents. The former president's grandson, David, and the Ellises son, Mylin, were classmates at Phillips Exeter Academy.

Big crowds greeted Teddy

Teddy Roosevelt at Lynn City Hall with Mayor William Shephard.

LYNN — Visits of President Theodore Roosevelt to Lynn in 1902 and 1912 attracted huge crowds but without any formal speech or programs during their visits. Presidents Franklin Delano Roosevelt and Calvin Coolidge were seen more by chance than design.

Theodore Roosevelt came to Lynn Aug. 24-25, 1902, to visit with Sen. Henry Cabot Lodge of Nahant, chairman of the Senate's Foreign Affairs Committee, to enlist his aid in pushing purchase of a strip across the Isthmus of Panama for building a canal.

Huge crowds filled Central Square as the president arrived on a 3 p.m. train with his vast entourage. He rode with Lodge in the latter's carriage to Nahant, leading a fleet of carriages bearing national, state and local officials, business and community leaders.

Units of Massachusetts Volunteer Marines and gun police rode smartly-prancing horses in a cordon of protection around the president's carriage, remembering, of course, that he had succeeded the martyred William McKinley.

Small boys perched on telephone poles and trees to gain a view of the popular leader. The following day, Roosevelt spoke briefly before a large crowd in front of the Lynn City Hall, then left for a major speech in Boston.

Visits to Lynn by Calvin Coolidge during his three-month stay in Swampscott in 1928 were usually unannounced and those who did see him did so usually by mere chance.

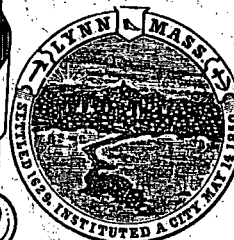

However, on one announced occasion, Coolidge did attend a flag pole dedication at a Lynn school before a large number of schoolchildren and their parents.

President Franklin Delano Roosevelt was in this area in 1938 for the marriage of son John in Nahant but was sheltered from the populace by Secret Service agents and police. He was seen by large crowds as he emerged from the Nahant Episcopal Church. Two years later, he again came to Nahant aboard the presidential yacht Potomac and was seen when it docked at Tudor Wharf by a large gathering. His stay then was brief.

JFK was frequent visitor to Lynn

By PHIL KKHOR
Item Staff Writer

Though never a visitor to Lynn while he was president, John F. Kennedy had a legion of friends in Lynn and its neighboring communities and was a visitor to the city and area frequently during his congressional and presidential campaigns.

Among his closest friends in the Lynn area were former Lynn mayor Thomas P. Costin Jr., now the Lynn postmaster, who first met the president as a city councilor, and the late Daniel Day, also a longtime city councilor who later became deputy regional director for the then U.S. Post Office Department in New England.

It was at Costin's home in 1953 that the first house party in the state in behalf of the then Congressman Kennedy's successful bid to unseat Senator Henry Cabot Lodge was held.

Kennedy was a frequent visitor to Lynn as far back as 1946, when he first embarked on a political career which was to take him from his first elected office, a Congressman from the same district now represented by House Speaker Tip O'Neill, to the presidency.

Kennedy's most recent visit to Lynn was during the Presidential primary campaign days of 1960.

During his campaign tours, Kennedy always included a tour of The Item Building.

In 1958, when he was seeking reelection to the Senate, Kennedy and his wife, Jacqueline, visited Lynn, at which time The Item bestowed upon him its Bouquet of the Week in recognition of his "many notable services to state and nation."

Prophetically, an Item editorial later that year suggested that the then senator's career "might well serve as a new chapter for his widely-read book, 'Profiles in Courage,' for which Kennedy had won a Pulitzer Prize.

In 1952, Kennedy, then a congressman, was honored by the Greater Lynn Junior Chamber of Commerce for "outstanding contributions to the state during this critical year of history (1952)."

His remarks upon receiving the award were prophetic. "After all," he said, "as young men we have the most to win or the most to lose."

Never known to stand on ceremony, Kennedy, the candidate, would stop passers-by on Lynn streets, introduce himself and exchange pleasantries with citizens and encourage comments and questions on timely topics.

As a campaigner, Kennedy set a pace that was torrid, as witness a 1958 tour he made of Essex County — a 120 mile trip in slightly more than 24 hours.

In the evening, he spoke to a national convention of the Emblem Club at the New Ocean House in Swampscott. Earlier in the day, he spoke to a packed assembly of students at Classical High before motoring to Gloucester for a talk to fishermen and finally to a Beverly gathering of civic and business leaders.

Wherever Kennedy went, he was enthusiastically received. And it was in Lynn, among other Massachusetts cities and towns, that his strong provincial accent, which the nation grew to accept as distinctive, was first heard by his constituents.

His election to Congress in 1946, at the age of 29, was heralded throughout the nation as an indication that the younger generation was eager to meet responsibility in public life.

Commenting on the Kennedy aggressive campaign style, The Item, in a 1960 editorial, said: "Kennedy has a superb organization — intelligent, efficient, realistic, tough and determined. They outmaneuvered and outfoxed political veterans. They discarded moth-eaten political traditions. And, finally like their candidate, they worked day and night, week after week and month after month."

In 1958, Mayor Costin, in presenting the Item Bouquet of the Week to Kennedy, said: "We feel proud to call you a citizen of Lynn — as well as of Massachusetts."

There were numerous other visits to Lynn for Kennedy.

In 1946, as chairman of the 1946 convention of the Veterans of Foreign Wars, he spoke to a joint meeting of the Lynn Lions and Kiwanis Clubs at the former Hunt's Restaurant.

In 1951, as a congressman, Kennedy was the keynote speaker at the kickoff dinner of the Greater Lynn Chapter of the Red Cross fund-raising drive.

Later in 1951, he delivered an illustrated lecture on his Far Eastern tour at a program sponsored by the Swampscott Catholic Club at Swampscott High.

In 1956, as a senator, Kennedy visited Mayor Costin to offer the city his assistance in obtaining federal projects for the city, and at the same time pledged his aid in helping to further the urban redevelopment program initiated by Costin.

In 1957, Kennedy addressed more than 1,000 Essex County teachers and principals at their 128th annual convention in Swampscott.

The Lynn Chapter of Sweet Adelines will be part of the entertainment greeting the presidential party today at City Hall Square.

According to President Vivian Jackson, the group of 35 women will perform a medley of patriotic and southern songs under the direction of Diane Osborne.

The one-half hour performance will include "I'm Alabama Bound," "Red Rose Rag" and "I Love the Whole United States."

The Sweet Adelines appearance was requested by federal officials, Mrs. Jackson said.

Mavrroules welcomes visit by president

LYNN — Expressing both confidence and gratitude, 6th Congressional District candidate Nick Mavrroules said he felt "deeply honored" by President Carter's visit today, adding that he is looking forward to working with the Carter administration.

Mavrroules, mayor of Peabody for 11 years and winner of a Democratic primary race over Rep. Jim Smith of Lynn and County Commissioner John McKean of Beverly, faces GOP contender Bill Bronson of Manchester on Nov. 7th.

The Democratic nominee said he was extremely pleased that the president found the time to come to the 6th District and to visit his largest city.

"It's quite an honor for the entire area," he said.

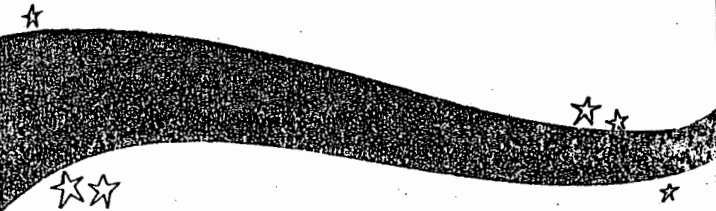

"We're all honored to have the president show his personal interest and I'm looking forward to working with his administration in January, to help do the appropriate things to rebuild our cities and towns.

"There is a need for an abundance of attention here, and the president now has seen, first hand, the needs of our communities.

WELCOME ABOARD, MR. PRESIDENT.

Welcome to the home of America's finest jet engines and power generating equipment.

On behalf of our more than 12,000 local employees and their families, the General Electric Company cordially extends to you our sincere greetings.

General Electric in Lynn was the birthplace of America's first jet engine thirty-six years ago. Today, the world headquarters of General Electric's Aircraft Engine Group is located here. In the tradition of dedicated American craftsmanship, the GE men and women who are the Aircraft Engine Group produce powerplants of exceptional quality for transportation, commerce and defense around the globe.

More than 32,000 GE engines are in service with 55 countries. For example, more than 25 free world nations depend on General Electric jet engines for their F-4 and F-5 defense aircraft. The U.S. Navy and Marines rely upon GE power from Lynn for several aircraft, including their new F-18 jet fighter. The U.S. Army looks to Lynn and our General Electric engines for the superior power and performance required by their new generation of transport and combat helicopters. The U.S. Coast Guard flies GE-powered helicopters. Even our Nation's E-4 Airborne Command Post remains ever alert, ready with General Electric engines.

Nearly 60 airlines worldwide fly A300, DC-10 and 747 widebody transports equipped with jet engines from General Electric's CF6 family — engines designed to deliver the reliability, economy, fuel savings and environmental care every nation needs today.

Industrial and Marine Steam Turbine Division, headquartered in Lynn, provides the nation's foremost steam turbine and gear technology for merchant marine and naval propulsion. Lynn craftsmen have built modern General Electric geared marine steam turbine propulsion equipment for virtually every merchant marine shipbuilding nation in the free world. GE propulsion systems power the latest of the Navy's aircraft carriers and nuclear-powered submarines.

Utility and industrial steam turbine-generator units, and combined cycle electrical power systems, are in the forefront of power generation technology, providing dependable economical energy systems for America's utilities and industries.

Giving the world a major thrust into the future is what we do best at the General Electric Company. We sincerely hope your visit here is a happy and rewarding experience. From all of us, respectfully, welcome aboard.

Police inspect Wakefield Mobil office

Mobil offices hit by bombs

BOSTON (UPI) — Two suburban Mobil Oil Co. offices were bombed late Friday night, causing extensive damage. A terrorist group which bombed a Boston courthouse two years ago, injuring 22 persons, has claimed responsibility for the latest incident.

Police in Wakefield and Waltham said "relatively sophisticated explosive devices" were used.

There were no injuries but damage was heavy to the unoccupied Mobil offices, both in building complexes housing other corporate offices.

Windows were blown out, inner offices were damaged and gaping holes were left in outside walls. Five-foot craters were formed where the bombs had been placed in the ground, police said.

The bombs were put near outside walls beneath windows. The explosive device in Waltham was described by police as a "pipe bomb." The other bomb was not described.

A person identifying himself as a member of the Sam Melville-Jonathan Jackson Unit called UPI in Boston about 9:00 p.m. EDT to warn the bombs would explode at 9:30 p.m.

The caller telephoned UPI again about 9:35 p.m. to say a "communique" could be picked up at an address in Cambridge. Before he hung up the caller said, "Free the Puerto Rican nationals."

The FBI picked up the onepage note in a phone booth outside an apartment building.

MARINO'S TIRES NOT SLASHED

LYNN — It turns out that a report that someone had slashed tires on the mayor's car was not quite accurate.

"Someone let the air out of a couple of the tires, that's all. I don't want people thinking we have a problem with someone going around slashing tires," Marino explained.

The car had been parked outside Studio 4 on the Lynnway Wednesday and Marino said he left it there overnight rather than risking damage to the tires if he drove on them.

Lynn

Drug arrest

A hospital technician was charged with larceny of cocaine Friday afternoon following an investigation into the alleged theft of the drug from the Lynn Hospital Pharmacy.

Vice Squad Detectives Raymond Richard and Joseph Olaszewski arrested Robert E. Frits, 22, 174 Beacon Hill Ave., at 4:30 p.m. after an investigation led to the man's questioning. A total of eight grams of the drug were found missing earlier in the week, police said. They said the bottle containing the drug was tested for fingerprints.

Dog theft

Two men in their late teens are being sought today in connection with the beating of a 14-year-old girl and theft of a shepherd pup.

Police said Tracey Votano, 13, Lewis St., reported that she was walking her dog "Rommel" at 4:30 p.m. when she was beaten by the pair.

Police said the dog has a dark body, long ears, and tan paws.

Hungry

Police turned over two 12-year-old boys to their parents Friday evening after an alert patrolman on a walking beat discovered a few bulges too many in coats the youths were wearing.

Patrolman Joseph Rowe said he stopped the two boys at 7:30 p.m. and confiscated the following from under their coats: three boxes of cough drops, six boxes of cookies, seven cans of tonic and a battery.

Peabody

Thefts

A total of $400 in jewelry, $50 in coins and a $100 power saw were stolen from William LeClaire, 10 Belaire Ave. Friday.

Robert Greene, 64 Verdmont Ave., reported that a quantity of tools were stolen from a shed in his back yard.

Arthur Gormley, 40 Arlington St., reported that a gas bottle cooking grill was stolen from his patio Friday.

John Lynch, 121 Euclid Ave., reported that a total of $1,500 worth of stereo equipment and a tv set was stolen from his apartment.

Arrests

Patrolmen Richard Rawston and William Farewell arrested three persons Friday night on Chestnut Street. They charged the driver of the vehicle, Mark A. Williams, 17, Raymond, N.H., with operating under the influence and running a red light at Broad and Newhall Streets.

Two passengers, David A. Blaney, 18, 32 Rogers Ave., and a 18-year-old juvenile, were charged with possession of marijuana.

Everett M. Geldorf, 40, 154 Franklin St., was arrested by Patrolmen John Agurkis and Solomon Upshaw early Saturday morning and charged with operating under the influence.

Fire

Firefighters from East Lynn quickly extinguished a blaze in a vacant house at Lewis and Broad Streets early Saturday morning.

The blaze in the two-story house was called in at 2:54 a.m. and was declared out at 3:12 a.m.

Thefts

Police said a safe deposit box and bank books owned by John J. Espindle, 9 Sprague St., were recovered at 119 Mason St. Salem, and it was later learned that a break occurred at the man's house.

William F. Noonan, 3 Putnam St., reported that a quantity of silverware was stolen from his home in a break, and John O'Donnell, 9 Beeman Road, reported that his bedroom was #### ransacked and jewelry taken.

Arrests

Patrolman Charles Randall arrested Richard E. Messina, 17, 378 Lynnfield St., at 8:48 p.m. Friday and charged him with possession of drugs with the intent to sell.

Sgt. Joseph Bunaskevitch arrested Paul R. Williams Jr., 23, 1899 Hyde Park Ave., Readville, on charges of failing to keep right and operating under the influence.

Reverse

Arrests

Police arrested three persons Friday night on charges of operating under the influence and operating to endanger.

Sgt. Ron DiGiovanni and George Mundy arrested Amelio Ciampa, 70, 703 Beannington St., East Boston, at 9:45 p.m. Richard Anderson Jr., 29, 16 Essex St., Salem, was arrested at 10:30 p.m. by Patrolmen Carl Borgoli and Richard Griffin.

Rols Andres, 38, 26 Fidelis Way, Brighton, was arrested at 12:35 a.m.

Patrolmen Austin Boyington, Richard O'Brien, and Donald Robinson arrested Paul F. Balcom Jr.,

17, 15 Victoria St., at 1:30 a.m. Saturday, on a charge of attempted larceny of a motor vehicle.

Two persons were arrested on warrants Friday. Police said they arrested Arthur P. Snyder, 28, 623 Beach St., and William J. Smith, 18, 750 Winthrop Ave.

Thefts

George L. Chandler, 10 Linchurst Road, reported that a backhoe was stolen from his backyard Friday.

George L. Hornsby, 41 Marble St., reported at 3 a.m. Saturday that his 30-foot fiberglass Sea Ray boat was stolen from Fowler's Marina.

Marblehead

Arrest

Patrolman David Millett arrested a 15-year-old juvenile near the Pleasant Street coffee shop at 10:50 p.m. Friday on charges of being a minor in possession of alcoholic beverages and violating the town bylaw prohibiting drinking on a public way.

Judge Woods 'not guilty'

BOSTON (UPI) — Charlestown District Court presiding Judge Richard C. Woods was slipping champagne and hugging his wife and children. Only minutes before he had no idea what kind of fate a jury had in store for him.

Woods, 51, the first Massachusetts judge charged with a felony in connection with his judicial duties, Friday was acquitted of soliciting and accepting a $15,000 bribe in exchange for approving an assistant court clerk's job.

The 12 member Suffolk County Superior Court jury stunned the courtroom when it said it had reached its verdict after only 45 minutes deliberation.

"Not guilty," intoned jury foreman Christopher Smith, and there was applause in the courtroom.

Woods was accused of taking $15,000 on Friday, June 13, 1975 in return for approving an assistant court clerk's job for Edward Manley, son of Charlestown bar owner Joseph Manley.

Assistant court clerk John Sullivan, the key prosecution witness, testified the judge accepted the money in his chambers and gave him $2,500 for acting as the "bag man."

Joseph Manley of Nahant, owner of J.J. McCarthy's & Co. Inc., of Charlestown, corroborated Sullivan's testimony, testifying he had given Sullivan the cash wrapped in a crumpled, brown paper bag.

Woods was visibly shaken by the quick verdict. His face was ashen and his hands trembled. He finally broke down and cried when he realized he had been acquitted.

"I'm going to get a bottle of champagne, and I'm going to get some rest. I haven't slept in two days," Woods said after regaining his composure. "I feel tremendous."

Woods, who took the stand in his own defense, steadfastly claimed innocence. His wife, Earldine, and his mother also testified. Both women said Woods would have been unable to be in his chambers at the time he was supposed to have accepted the money, because he was doing an errand for them.

Woods, who faced up to six years in prison and a $10,000 fine, said the trial had drawn his family "closer together" and that he and his wife were going to take a vacation.

For Mrs. Woods, the verdict was a special present. She celebrated her 51st birthday Friday.

26 youths arrested at Lynnfield dance

LYNNFIELD — Police arrested 26 young persons, the majority from Wakefield, Friday night, in a parking lot outside a junior high dance.

A total of six patrolmen and a commanding officer shuttled the teenagers to the police station for booking on charges of being disorderly.

The arrests came in the wake of a bottle-throwing incident a week ago at a high school dance in Wakefield. Police said all youths were bailed and scheduled to appear in Peabody District Court this morning.

Police wore riot helmets in making the arrests, and said they feared an outbreak of violence between youths from both towns. A total of six cars owned by the youths were towed.

The arrests began at 9:35 p.m.

Coming Monday

Carter in Lynn

President Carter's visit to Lynn today, the first visit of a sitting president in 40 years, will include a speech in front of City Hall and a motorcade to the Colonial in Lynnfield for a $1,000-per-ticket fund-raiser. His visit is part of a four-state campaign tour to endorse local Democratic candidates.

Inflation

Sylvia Porter studies "inflation blues," which are reaching epidemic proportions throughout the nation. She also analyzes President Carter's Phase II policy in a special series, starting Monday in The Item.

Unclaimed money

State Treasurer Robert Q. Crane will announce on Monday the publication of a new unclaimed money list containing the names of nearly 500 North Shore individuals owed several thousands of dollars.

Schoolboy football

Today kicks off the biggest schoolboy football weekend of the season.

Not only is there a full slate of games in the Northeastern Conference, but a few "outsiders" are playing for some mighty big stakes.

Unbeaten Bishop Fenwick (6-0) takes on undefeated Dom Savio in a game that should decide the Super Bowl fate of the Crusaders; unbeaten Lynnfield (6-0) faces a tough test at Amesbury; and once-beaten Peabody (4-1) tries to improve its Division One Super Bowl chances when it battles 5-0-1 Medford.

And what a Monday in The Item!

1-2 punch hits DPW building

SAUGUS — A Georgetown man and his passenger escaped without injury early this morning after their vehicle scaled an embankment, and smashed through the roof of the DPW building.

Patrolman Arthur Grabowski arrested the driver, identified as James R. Fiorillo, 25, 14 Prescott Lane, Georgetown, at 3 a.m., and charged him with operating under the influence.

Patrolman Frank Gill said Grabowski arrived seconds after the initial call came into the station.

Police said Fiorillo and his passenger, Andrea Hell, 50 Hesper St., were in a Chevrolet Blazer on Hamilton Street when the vehicle went onto a sidewalk, then crossed the road and scaled an embankment beside the DPW building.

Police said the vehicle went up in the air, overturned, and pushed a four-by-four foot hole in the roof of the building, then punched a similar hole in the building's side as it fell.

Police said the driver told them someone cut him off as he was driving down the street.

Building demolition halted by injunction

SALEM — Judge Paul G. Garrity issued a preliminary injunction against the city of Lynn Friday at Superior Court to prevent the demolition of a vacant building at 495 Boston St.

The Lynn City Council voted Oct. 10 to order demolition of the building, also known as 2 Robinson St., claiming it would be in the best interest of health, safety and welfare of residents.

Attorney John I. Fitzgerald of Lynn, counsel for the Reliance Realty Trust, told the court the building is not in a dilapidated or dangerous condition and is not a public nuisance.

The injunction will remain in effect until a further court order or until there is a trial on the merits of the case.

A subtle reminder

John Russell, a clown with the Ringling Brothers and Barnum & Bailey Circus, doesn't want to draw attention to himself, but he wants to remind passersby in Boston's Back Bay to set their clocks back one hour Sunday when the country switches to Standard Time.

40 winks more

Greater Lynnians will be turning the clock back one hour Sunday morning, giving them extra sleeping time if they are so inclined.

Most of the nation returns to Standard Time officially at 2 a.m. Sunday, although for most people it happens the night before or the morning after.

If anyone thinks he'll have an extra hour at his favorite watering hole, he won't. According to Jan Hopkins at the state Alcoholic Beverage Control Commission, establishments serving liquor will be required to close at 2 a.m. Daylight Savings Time. They may turn their clocks back after they close.

In any case, the burden of getting up should be a lot "lighter" on the early risers.

EPA listens on rubbish costs

LYNN — It looks like the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency (EPA) may buy the idea of helping pay the city's rubbish disposal costs for a while in return for reserving space at the municipal landfill.

Stopping daily rubbish disposal at the landfill would permit saving room for disposal of a large amount of material which must be excavated for foundations of the sewage treatment plant to be built on nearby land. The state and federal governments pay 80 per cent of the construction costs of the plant, so helping to pay the city's rubbish disposal tab for several months might be cheaper than digging up the debris and hauling it out of the city.

That, at least, is the argument which Department of Public Commissioner John Casey has been using with state and federal officials.

Mayor Antonio J. Marino, Casey, a number of other city officials and engineers from VTN, the city's consultants, met with representatives of the state and federal environmental agencies this week to discuss that and related issues.

According to Casey, EPA officials for the first time showed a readiness to confront that issue and, in fact, promised a decision within two weeks if the mayor and VTN provide information requested by the EPA. That information has been or will be provided to EPA shortly.

Casey estimates it could cost EPA about $585,000 to pay its portion of rubbish disposal costs between now and June. That figure is at least several times less than the best guess of what it would cost to transfer the material from the plant site somewhere outside the city.

The DPW commissioner said EPA has apparently dropped any suggestion that alternate sites be considered for the plant and also downplayed earlier suggestions that it was not consulted on the decision to build the plant on a landfill site.

"We were satisfied with the results of the meeting. I feel EPA listened to us and was responsive to us," Casey said.

There are a number of other issues to be ironed out, including exact timing of land acquisition for the plant and a proposed industrial park where the landfill is located as well as a definite decision on whether Resco Incinerator in Saugus would be the place the city's daily rubbish collections would be taken.

Hatch pitches for Blue Line extension

BOSTON — Republican gubernatorial candidate Frank Hatch of Beverly called upon President Jimmy Carter today to commit federal money to the MBTA Blue Line Extension into Lynn.

"Improving mass transit is one of Massachusetts' top priorities. Plans have been drawn to extend the rail service into Lynn and the extension would bring more jobs and many more benefits in public transportation into the area."

"I urge the president to direct the Department of Transportation to throw its support behind this project. The people on the North Shore have been waiting five years for this project."

Hatch also urged the president to change the thrust of today's visit in Lynn from political endorsements to making commitments toward revitalization of that city's downtown area.

Sadat, Begin share Nobel prize

OSLO, Norway (UPI) — Egyptians and Israelis praised their national leaders for winning the 1978 Nobel Peace Prize, but the warm words were tinged with the tense reality of the stalled Washington peace conference.

The citation of the Norwegian Nobel Committee itself said President Anwar Sadat of Egypt and Prime Minister Menachem Begin of Israel received the award, "not only to honor actions already performed but also to encourage further efforts to work out practical solutions" toward a Middle East peace.

That sentiment was pointedly echoed by President Carter, who was nominated for the prize for his efforts at Camp David, but reportedly lost out because nominations closed in February.

"Time and again in the last year," Carter said in his message to the leaders still technically at war with each other, "you have overcome the obstacles that stood in your way for you understood the importance of your goal."

"I know that this award will be an occasion for you and for all of us to rededicate our efforts, for it makes clear how much the people of the world value your search."

Though the committee could not award the prize to Carter, there was nothing to stop it praising the president.

"In the efforts to reach a realistic peace order which could build bridges between former enemies and prevent conflicts of interests, also the positive initiative by USA's President Jimmy Carter has played a great role," the committee said.

Despite grumblings from some Egyptians that Sadat shared the prize with Begin, Sadat said through his prime minister he was "very happy."

"Why should he be disappointed?" Prime Minister Mustafa Khalil said. "The president is honored and this honor cannot be diminished if he shares it with some other person."

Khalil said Sadat will donate his share of the $172,000 prize money to his native Nile Delta village of Mit Abul Kom, about 40 miles north of Cairo, thus "giving another proof of his loyalty to Egypt's soil."

In Israel, Begin press spokesman Dan Patir said the prime minister will call Sadat to congratulate him on the joint award.

The prize announcement came after the start of the Jewish sabbath and Begin, as an Orthodox Jew, postponed any direct comment and scheduled a new conference after sunset this evening (12:30 p.m. EDT).

"All of us, all the people of Israel should be very proud and happy. I think the two statesmen — President Sadat and the prime minister of Israel, more than any other people deserve this prize and I hope that their efforts and the appreciation they won will indeed lead to the signing of a peace treaty," said Israeli Deputy Prime Minister Yigael Yadin.

Tests for GE's F404 completed, accepted

LYNN — General Electric announced that its F404, for the U.S. Navy's new F-18 Hornet Strike Fighter, has completed another milestone in its development test program.

B.A. Riemer, general manager of GE's F404 program, said, "All official pre-flight rating tests for the F404 have been completed and accepted by the U.S. Navy. The engine's outstanding performance assurance for obtaining Navy approval."

According to Riemer, 18 of the F404 engines have been built to date. "These engines," he said, "have undergone nearly 5,000 hours of factory development testing, including 2,300 hours of endurance testing and more than 500 hours of altitude testing. During this testing, 17 60-hour (PFRT) and two 150-hour (MOT) endurance runs have been successfully completed."

Riemer attributes much of the engine's success to date to the fact that General Electric utilized advanced but demonstrated technology in designing the F404.

Her fiancé, also a Classical High graduate, graduated from Suffolk University and is employed by Cambridge Tire in Cambridge.

A June 1979 wedding is planned.

Gregory-Tisevich

Mr. and Mrs. Edward L. Gregory, 288 Western Ave., announce the engagement of their daughter, Cheryl Marie, to John Michael Tisevich. He is the son of Mrs. Betty Tisevich of Danvers and John Tisevich of Hamilton.

The bride-to-be, a graduate of English High, is a secretary with the Bureau of Alcohol and Firearms.

Her fiancé, a Danvers High graduate, is employed with H. K. Porter Co. of Somerville.

The wedding is planned for Aug. 11, 1979.

DONNA AND HECTOR MONTERO

Montero-Joly

Donna Joly and Hector Montero were married at St. Joseph's Church in Salem by the Rev. Leonard Pelletier.

The bride was attended by her sister, Eileen Joly of Salem, maid of honor, and her sisters-in-law, Darleen Joly of Salem and Madelyn Joly of New Hampshire.

Angel Soto of Salem was best man. Also attending the groom were Juan L. Lara of Salem and Uraney Soto of Lawrence.

The bride, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George Joly, 38 Naumkeag St., Salem, graduated from Salem High. She is employed by S.E.I. in Salem.

The bridegroom, son of Mrs. Elisa Montero of the Dominican Republic, graduated from Francisco G. Billini High in the Dominican Republic. He is a foreman with Sirois Bros. Inc. in Peabody.

Following a wedding trip to the Dominican Republic, the couple will live in Salem-Salem.

the wonderful world of animals by Dr. Frank Miller

DEAR DR. MILLER: Isn't it bad for a dog to ride in a pickup truck bed this time of year? The ones I am seeing now look cold and miserable back there. Our next-door neighbor always takes his dog in the back of his truck even though he has room in the cab. He says it doesn't get cold and it likes it better back there. Is this true?

DEAR H.B.: Not for most dogs. The cab is indeed warmer and more comfortable through, for a few, less exciting. Ideally, the dog should never have that choice. It should be the cab or not at all. Even during warm weather, a pickup bed is a dangerous canine carrier. Wind-blown dust, dirt, pebbles popping up from passing cars and insects can all cause trouble to dogs' ears and eyes and, of course, this time of year pneumonia could be the result.

Even more hazardous is the distinct possibility that the dog won't remain in that pickup bed; many are killed when they fall or jump out. Even some non-canine freeway dog new tricks, so I'm hoping you can teach an old bird new tricks. Can you? In particular, I am

DEAR DR. MILLER: I thinking of my myna saw Sassy, our cat, lick-bird, Blacky. DEAR DR. MILLER: Whiskey, my six-month- old female hamster, has a tiny sore on each of the DEAR DR. MILLER: I outside corners of her know it's not true that mouth. At first, I thought you can't teach an old they were caused by her gnawing on the wires of her cage, but she has gotten over that habit for the most part, yet the sores are still there. Is she lacking something in her diet? Along with her daily commercial hamster food, I feed her celery, lettuce, carrots and some dry cereal.

DEAR J.B.: If that's fresh hamster food, her total diet should certainly be adequate. (Easy on the cereal, though, if it's a super refined and/or sweetened variety.) Metal-munching might indeed have been the start of this "sore corner" syndrome. Whether these areas are now ulcerated and/or infected and what would be the most appropriate treatment, well, Whiskey's own doctor could best determine that after an examination.

Hiking Club conquers Mt. Cardigan

Last Saturday, the Hiking Club took a trip to Mt. Cardigan, N.H., where they spent the day hiking up the mountain. Mr. Bullerwell, who is advisor of the club, said that everyone seemed to have a great time.

The scenery was excellent. From the top of the mountain you could look down and see Newfound Lake. The climb was started by 11:30 in the morning and everyone was home by 6:30 that night. The students who hiked up were Dawn Baribeau, Mary DiPietro, Bill O'Brien, Richard Turner, Mr. Bullerwell, and his daughter Karin.

Mr. Bullerwell schedules meetings for Tuesday nights and is looking forward to having new members join. Some future trips will include more hiking, snowshoeing, and cross country skiing at Happy Valley.

The newly-elected officers for the sophomore class are: President, Debbie Sacco; Vice-Presidents, James Morrison and Donna Snowden; Secretaries, Lisa Moran and Kay Selt; Executives, Stacey Gaffey and Lynn McGilvery. We know that they'll do a great job.

The seventh-annual Pancake Festival is coming up on Nov. 17. Save that date and come down to the school and eat all the pancakes you can for $.99.

Thanksgiving is just around the corner. All of you know what that means. It means both the boys and girls football teams have to be in great shape.

The Powder Puff team is trying to get its act together for the big game against our rival, Classical. The big day is Nov. 23, so go to both games and cheer our teams to victory!

Students now favor 7-period day

Last spring Saugus was the scene of a controversy — whether or not to revert to a seven-period schedule.

The students at Saugus High were completely satisfied with having eight periods in a school day, however, this meant the day consisted of eight different classes, either major subjects, physical education or study periods.

Principal Robert Fraser felt the number of classes could be cut to seven, increasing each period by five minutes. He felt the lengthening of the periods would be more beneficial, enabling the students to have more learning time.

Fraser brought his suggestion to the Saugus School Committee, which despite all efforts by

Scholar, reformer, athlete... that's Tom

A scholar, a reformer and an athlete... that's Tom Pappas.

Tom is a senior who has devoted much time to Classical High. One of his first duties was editor-in-chief of the Rampage.

Classical

By KATE MCGAUGHEY

In fact, Tom appears to be in charge of everything he participates in.

He is president of the Contemporary Affairs Club which is looking forward to the Harvard Model U.N. He is also president of the chess club, and plans to join the science club. He is a member of the National Honor Society and plays varsity tennis in the spring.

Tom is the type of person who sets his goals high and has applied to such colleges as Harvard, Clark, Tufts, Georgetown and Bowdoin.

What is it that gives him this will to learn?

Tom says, "It's Classical." He refers to her as a great school in terms of spirit and education.

Tom doesn't stop in the summer, either. He works all year around as a publicity coordinator for the Lynn Youth Commission's clinics.

Besides working so hard, Tom has a few hobbies such as stamp collecting (a modest collection), playing tennis, chess, and creative writing.

He is an energetic scholar who admits, "I'm dedicated to Classical and to good scholarship."

Tom is out to reform all that is bad and stretch all that is good to the limit. He works day and night to maintain his straight "A" average because, "I feel better as a person."

Who can say what is in store for Tom in his future? But if Tom Pappas sets his goals as high as his standards, then he will surely be successful in life.

students to oppose the change, voted it in for the 1978-1979 school year.

As it turned out, the results show the change was a favorable one. Students feel the seven-period day goes by much quicker and the added time gives them that extra few minutes to finish labs or complete exams.

Final elections for Latin Club officers were held and officers elected were Jean Ludwig, president; Suzy McInnis, vice president; Laura Dwyer, secretary and Kathy Wadleigh, treasurer. Senators include Ed Beal, Carole Traverse, Mark Kryzwicki, Mike O'Hearn, Joyce Langlois, Marie Gulliford, Eric Hansen, Patty Simpson and Art Weeks.

It was a close election with only a few votes separating the winners in every office. All candidates were allowed to campaign, by placing one poster each on the wall of the Latin

Beware of 'Casper' wearing sneakers

What is the only time of the year that one sees a ghost wearing sneakers?
That very special holiday is Halloween and it falls on Oct. 31. Halloween is a time for the young and the young at heart to transform themselves into the heroes, heroines, or ghostly ghouls of their dreams.

Swampscott

By PAMELA ROTNER

This year, a team of enthusiastic Swampscott High School students will don a variety of costumes, ranging from Mickey Mouse to a giant crayon, and give two fun-filled Halloween parties for Swampscott's elementary school students.

The parties are sponsored by the high school's Special Programs Office and there will be a group of 80 volunteers overseeing the parties. The parties will be held at the Stanley School and the Hadley School from 6:30-8 p.m.

Current topic: electronics shop

The student who is enrolled in electronics shop at the Lynn Vocational Technical Institute will become familiar with the use and application of components which include capacitors, inductors and resistors.

Testing equipment, such as tube testers, signal generators, ammeters, voltmeters, television analyzers and the oscilloscope, is used to check the operation of radar, radio and television.

The resistors and other components used in this course are color-coded, hence the student must have normal color perception to read the code. As students progress the work becomes more difficult, eventually leading to layout, building, testing, trouble shooting and modifying various electronic equipment.

Algebra and physics are part of the student's studies with other academic subjects. Most students in this course will go on to further their education by attending college to receive either an Associate or Bachelor's degree. Because the field of electronics is so broad, most students study a specific area after high school, some hoping to become electronics technicians. The average wage for electronic technicians $200-$285 a week.

Approximately 1/3 of the senior electronic class is out on co-op jobs.

A reminder to all junior and senior students about dues. Fifteen dollars is due in the junior year, and $20 in the senior year. A total of $35 dollars must be paid by the end of the senior year.

This is the second year that high school students have held the Halloween parties. Susan Karas, a member of the past year's senior class, thought that it would be a lot of fun if there was an activity to look forward to, besides the tradition of trick or treating.

The planning and preparation for the parties is headed by Helen Cassidy, a senior. The individual school chair people are: Terri Wood and Kathy Ryan at the Hadley School and Marlene Mithin and Maureen Ryan at the Stanley School. There are five major committees planning the events and they are: the small games committee, arts and crafts, decorations and food, gym games, and the most spine-tingling attraction of all, the haunted house committee.

The purpose of the party is to provide a fun-filled evening for the children and to provide a place for the kids to go on Halloween Eve. One can only hope that the parties will be as great a success this Halloween as they were on the last one.

Admission is free, as are all the fun and games.

'Co-Op' plan gives job experience

The year 1977 saw the beginning of a new program at the vocational school called "Co-Op." The program allows students to go for one week of academics and one week of work outside school.

The jobs are acquired for these students by the shop instructors or from a list of people in need of help in the various trades. The teacher chooses the students he feels would be willing and able to fulfill the necessary requirements of each position.

The student may not know everything about his or her trade, but the instructor looks at all of the qualities of the student in determining whether he or she would gain from this work experience.

The program is a very successful one so far.

The student gets the feeling of being a real tradesman. Another important advantage is that the student learns how to deal with people which is a major part of any trade.

Peabody Voke

Students also learn different procedures to doing certain jobs.

Not all of the shops in the vocational school are in a "Co-Op" program at present, however, the director of the school, Richard White, feels that eventually all of the shops will be participating.

High school marching band stepping up act

The Revere High School Band has come a long way in the past four years.

Four years ago money was appropriated for a drill instructor. The Music Department came up with one of the best instructors a high school band could ever have, Mr. Paul Cain.

Mr. Cain works with Mr. Ritter, the band's musical director in constructing new routines for the football games.

Mr. Ritter searches for the proper music to give the band that extra dazzle. Then he and the band members spend hours practicing the musical pieces.

Revere

By DEIRDRE SARTORELLI

However, that's only half of the story. Mr. Cain, with his assistant, Archie Prendable, must develop a routine for each song, and each belt-line consists of three to four songs.

The routine is called marching and maneuvering. Mr. Cain must think of the best maneuver that will complement each song. Then he and his assistant give each section of the band its particular number of counts for the routine.

Every Wednesday night, practice is held from 5:30 to 9 p.m. Then, on Saturday, practice is again at 9 a.m. to noon with the football game starting at 1:30 p.m.

The band this year is really becoming sophisticated. With the purchase of new silk flags and the addition of a 16-member color guard, the band is quickly becoming the envy of many other bands.

A good time was had by all during the annual Senior Council trip to the United Nations in New York.

A Halloween costume dance for seniors and juniors will be held this coming Tuesday night at the Knights of Columbus Hall in Revere. See Mr. Caruso for more details and tickets.

Senior wins top National Merit scholarship

Many students are unaware of the many scholarships that are available. A list made up of pages and pages probably wouldn't be able to include every scholarship offered.

However, there is one that should be of definite interest to the students of Peabody High, for this scholarship has been awarded to a student from PVMHS.

Theresa Rucker, a senior at Peabody High, was recently informed that she was the winner of the National Merit Scholarship for Outstanding Negro Students.

"The contest was looking for the top 10 per cent of 60,000 youths throughout the nation who entered it," explained Theresa.

At the preamble of the PSAT testing form, the student may check the corresponding box answering the question of whether or not they would wish to be submitted to the contest.

The finalists were chosen mainly by the PSAT scores from last year's testing, however, the student's grades were also a basic consideration.

Being a national contest and given through the College Board testing program, the scholarship was offered to any black student in the nation.

Certainly many people, parents as well as the students, wonder what these scholarships actually offer to the winning pupil.

"A letter has been sent out to all of the regional colleges," Theresa said. "This means that I will be able to get easy admittance to any college that I choose to go to and I will be granted the scholarship."

Theresa described the way in which she had been informed that she had won the competition.

"Mr. Welsh (the principle at PHS) called me into his office on that Thursday and I had absolutely no idea of what I'd done," said Theresa.

"When he told me that I'd been awarded the scholarship," she continued, "I was so shocked. I couldn't believe it."

Theresa plans on attending Boston University or Tufts in the fall of 1979 and has decided to specialize in law.

Between Theresa's part-time job as a sales girl at Jordan Marsh and her hectic and constant studying, she is kept busy. It must be very hard to keep up the title of the "Outstanding Negro Student in the Nation," but along with Theresa's high hopes and her great expectations for the future, that shouldn't be too difficult.

Halloween Dance is set to take place. Guests of honor range from Steve Martin to coneheads and pumpkins, all coming to join in the fall festivities.

Featured will be the versatile band "Eternity", offering such music from that of Neil Young to the rock of Led Zeppelin. Tickets may be purchased at the door for $2.00.

Put on your best Halloween costume and come to this dress rehearsal for Tuesday's performance. The dance will end at 11 p.m., allowing ample time for the assembled spooks to reach their midnight destinations.

Elections have recently been held for new members of the National Honor Society. These seniors will join those already selected last spring, to comprise the Marblehead High School chapter of the National Honor Society. The elected students have many responsibilities, one of which deals with tutoring fellow schoolmates.

A panel of faculty members narrowed down the 90 qualified seniors who were afforded the opportunity of making formal application to the society.

To be eligible, students had to exhibit at least a 3.0 grade-point average, good attitude and behavior and active participation in various school activities. Congratulations to: Keith Ablow, Leslie Baker, Jeffrey Bentley, Pamela Bartlett, Alan Berg, Michael Buckley, Ann Cairns, Judy Counter, Linda Cohen, Susan Dalquest, Marcia Felven, Dan Ferreira, Tracey Flanagan, Nancy Gaffen, Karen Hannaway, Mary Jo Healey, Edward Hertz, Amy Hirschkron, Barbara Johnson, Tammy Kenney, Donna Kramer, Mary Beth Kulevich, Eric Nyberg, Kathleen O'Connor, David Perry, Tracey Pope, Susan Schneider, Michael Snow, Kip Stone, Jean Sylvester, Catherine Margaret Vessot, Deirdre Weston and Brenda Woodfin.

Catering to that recently neglected sweet tooth, the basketball cheerleaders will be selling fudge this week. Money raised will help buy much needed equipment and help to finance a successful season. Interested customers please contact a member of the squad.

The Marblehead High football team hosts the Saugus Sachems today at 1:30. As we approach the latter part of the season let's make the most of each and every game. Your support is especially needed to rally our team into a victory!

St. Mary's observing 2 favorite days

Two of St. Mary's favorite traditional days occur this week. They are Homecoming Day and Senior-Freshman Day (formerly Baby Day).

The Spartan football team will face Matignon at 1:30 p.m. for the Homecoming Game, but the highlight of the day is the crowning of the Homecoming Queen.

Any senior girl may be nominated, except for St. Mary's cheerleaders, so students should start giving some thought to the nominees.

St. Mary's

By SUE MALONE

Tuesday brings with it the next tradition, Senior-Freshman Day. On this day, each Freshman girl becomes better acquainted with her "big sister," a senior girl who will be a friend, and if necessary, helper, to her throughout her freshman year.

On Senior-Freshman Day, all students have classes until 11:10 a.m., but at 11:30 the festivities for the seniors and freshmen begin. The girls have a fun-filled afternoon planned. They will all be dressed in Halloween costumes and will perform in skits, join in sing-alongs, and have lunch. The senior boys are in the final stages of their plans for the freshman boys, but still have a few details to work out.

Although the freshmen and seniors will all be together for only one afternoon, hopefully their feelings of togetherness and friendship will last much longer, so when it's time for this year's freshmen to plan Senior-Freshman Day 1981, they will remember what a wonderful time they had when they were freshmen, thanks to the seniors of 1979.

Congratulations to the newly-elected junior class officers. They are Brian Travers, president; John Kennedy, vice-president; Marianne McManus, secretary; and Laurie McGovern, treasurer. Good luck to them, and let's hope that they can help the juniors to have a great year.

This past Wednesday, St. Mary's National Honor Society was invited to send representatives to attend a convention at Bentley College. This convention was devoted to the National Honor chapters in the area, to meet other members, and to exchange ideas. Representatives from the Marian Chapter were Mary Ann Valeri, Julie Masello, Cathy Galvin, Bob Grant, and Sue Malone, and they were accompanied by Mrs. Joy Morris, faculty advisor.

Don't forget Armchair Racing tonight. It's sponsored by the St. Mary's Athletic Association, and starts at 8 p.m. in the Cardinal Cushing Center. Donations will be accepted.

Just a reminder that after the Homecoming Game, the senior class is sponsoring a family-

AFS committee busy selecting exchange pupils

The AFS (American Field Service) selection committee has been busy the past few weeks selecting the students from Lynnfield High who will spend their summer either in another country, or another part of the United States.

Because Lynnfield High has taken two foreign exchange students through the AFS exchange program this year, we are entitled to send six students abroad. The domestic program, (sending a student to another location in the United States) has also been opened to students in Lynnfield High.

Eleven Juniors were screened for the AFS summer program. Out of the 11, six students were chosen as finalists. Going abroad are Maura Dineen, Louise DeLuca, Dianne Rhudick, Laurie Madison, and Kati Kane. Kathy Greener has been chosen for the domestic program.

In order to select the proper students, each applicant is carefully screened. After a student has applied for the AFS program, they meet for a punch party where the 10 selection committee members and the applicants get to know one another.

Applicants are invited to the home of a member on the selection committee and shortly after they are interviewed. Each committee member picks one question for the interview and asks each applicant this question, so all of the students have an equal chance. After the interviews are conducted, semi-finalists are chosen. Committee members visit the semi-finalists at home, and then semi-finalists are asked to answer a written question. The semi-finalists are reviewed by the selection committee, and finalists are chosen.

Mrs. Tilsley, chairman of the selection committee, said there are no specific qualities looked for in each applicant while choosing the finalists. She feels each applicant is different. Some general features the selection committee does look for are the ability to adapt to a new situation, and a certain amount of maturity. The ability to smile easily is important as "a smile is an international language," says Mrs. Tilsley. Someone who has the ability to act natural and just be himself around others is another quality the selection committee considers.

Mrs. Tilsley feels that some of the purposes of the AFS student exchange program are to give the students an opportunity to better understand other cultures, and to erase the stereotypes we have of the people in different countries.

Congratulations to Lynnfield High Marching Band, which came in third place in division C last Sunday at the marching band competition at Cawley Stadium in Lowell.

She learned American ways quickly

At first glance Yvonne Wallem, a junior Pingree student, would appear to be an average American girl. But she's not.

She was born in a Krankenhaus, (hospital), and raised in Dortmund, Germany, where she attended the Johann Realschule. In 1974, at the age of twelve, she and her family of seven moved to America.

Pingree

By JULIE JACKSON

Leaving behind the German customs was difficult, but Yvonne has adapted well to the American way of life. At the Brookwood School in Manchester, it took her only a year to learn the English language fluently. She remembers how helpful and patient Mr. Bean, her English teacher, was during her language transition. She also added that during her freshman year at Pingree, Mrs. Edward Rowland's assistance was extremely beneficial and appreciated.

"When we first arrived in Topsfield my five year old brother was very excited — he couldn't wait to learn English. Now he can speak English better than German. But when our grandmother visits, he reverts to speaking German — his memory refreshed."

Along with the Wallem family came a German wirehair, a German boxer and eight horses. The horses are highly prized by Yvonne, who is a hardworking, experienced rider. She acknowledged that one of their horses is a movie star — briefly filmed in a trailer in "International Velvet," a recent MGM movie.

Before she left Dortmund, Germany, Yvonne entered her horse in many horse shows. Since then she has taken part in several three day driving events in Massachusetts. She rode in the Columbus Day Hunt during the last weekend of September. Recently Yvonne won several prizes in North Andover; a first place cup for "Juniors to Drive," a first place cup in an obstacle course and a cup for best carriage driver. Yvonne explained that in the obstacle course, "there are obstacles varying in degree of difficulty and allotted points."

Yvonne enjoys riding in her family's fields, in Bradley Palmer State Park in South Hamilton and on the paths of the National Audubon Society, which border the Wallem's property.

She is also fond of basketball in the winter, field-hockey in the autumn and lacrosse during the spring term.

When not studying, Yvonne can be found in the kitchen cooking up a storm; she has mastered such delicacies as German potato pancakes, tarts and apple streusel cakes. Every second day bread is baked in their oven — producing a crusty, typical European bread.

She has other creative talents such as sketching and drawing. During the first few weeks she studied design value and worked with contour drawings. This past summer she drew cartoon-figures for a small friend, for his amusement, to accompany his reading book.

Two years ago Yvonne travelled to Dortmund for three weeks, catching up on a lot of news with her relatives, close friends and old neighbors. Her father, the owner of the Foreign Motors Co. in Boston, returns to their native land once or twice a year on business.

Yvonne hopes to become involved in hotel management in the future. She is a natural at calculating mathematical figures and enjoys meeting people.

Our friend has brought the flavor of another country to Pingree.

Recently students in French four and five attended the movie, "Madam Rosa" at the Cabot Street Theatre in Beverly. The French classes were accompanied by Mrs. Tina Ashton, Mr. Marcel LaFlem and Mrs. Paulette Smith. All the participants agreed that the foreign film starring Simone Signoret was magnificently portrayed and worth viewing.

St. John's second finalists in Danvers

PSAT key school step

Every year at this time, sophomores and juniors nationwide take what is known as the PSATs — Preliminary Scholastic Aptitude Tests — used as a measure of their scores on the actual college entrance examinations.

This is important, for, in addition to being an aptitude guide, it is a qualification test, known as the National Merit Scholarship Qualifying Test. This test, which is derived from PSAT scores, selects the top 5 per cent of all high school juniors who are notified in their senior year if they have qualified as "commended students."

At this point, the competition stiffens even further when the top one half of 1 per cent of the previously selected students are singled out as semifinalists in the PSAT ranking process.

St. John's

By BRADFORD E. KEENE

Even more difficult for a student to achieve is "finalist standing." If the student does extremely well on the PSAT test, he can qualify to compete for one of the $1000 scholarships given away, which are based on PSAT scores, qualities of leadership, extracurricular activities, school officials' recommendations and a biographical statement provided by each finalist.

It is therefore meaningful that almost 10 per cent of the senior class at Saint John's Prep was recognized as being either in "semifinalist" or "commended student" standing.

Education more than homework

Many are not only involved in school sponsored activities, but also are active in the surrounding communities.

Sophomore Mary Kay Brennan, the daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Charles Brennan of 10 Brookhead Ave., Beverly, is one of those people. Besides keeping up with her school work and her duties as a homeroom representative, she also has skating practice before and after school for a total of three to four hours a day.

Mary Kay has been active for five years with the North Shore Skating Club of Danvers and hopes to continue on through school.

She says she "always wanted to skate" and she enjoys it because, "it's a mixture of gymnastics and ballet. I've always liked that kind of thing."

The kind of skating Mary Kay does is not just another winter sport. She practices all year round, including taking lessons in the summer.

There are eight levels of competitive skating. In order to advance from one level to the next, you must pass a test. Currently, Mary Kay is in the Junior Ladies Division. Soon she will be taking the test for the eighth and highest level, Senior Ladies.

Along with other members of her club, she takes part in yearly competitions and many exhibitions. Each November she participates in the New England skating competition held in Dartmouth, Mass.

Last year she made it to the final round, competing with skaters from all over our state area.

We'd like to wish her the best of luck in this year's competition.

Tonight at 8 p.m., she will be a solo performer in an Ice Spectacular at Salem State College's O'Keefe Athletic Center on Canal St. in Salem. The theme of the show is "Parade of Fashions and Countries."

Mary Kay will be representing Britain in her free style routine set to the song MacArthur Park by Donna Summers. This Spectacular is sponsored by the North Shore Skating Club and sanctioned by the U.S. Figure Skating Association.

Hall's Lynn English Bulldogs had been bitten, beaten, and bullied by an overpowering Salem Witches club 42-0.

The Towering Inferno and Earthquake couldn't hold a candle to this disaster.

"They (Salem) were just awesome," said Hall. "They beat us at the skill positions and took away our running game when they shut down Mark Stevens (13 carries for 35 yards)."

"We were prepared for this game too, although it may not have looked it," added Hall. "Salem is a devastating team."

"Yup, we're rolling now," chipped in Salem coach Ken Perrone. "The last three weeks we've scored 40-34 and 42 points . . . awesome."

The strange thing about this game was that English dominated play in the first half but came away with nothing to show for its effort. The Bulldogs had more first downs (five to four) and ran 10 more plays.

Still, they trailed at the half 21-0.

After Tom Lambert intercepted a pass early in the first quarter, Salem halfback Barry Little scooted 15 yards on a quarterback-option play. Bob Carter kicked the conversion for a 7-0 lead.

Then Witches quarterback Jim Ryan went to work. The senior hit Mark Fecteau with a 6-yard scoring pass, set up by a picture-perfect Little-to-Fecteau 44-yard gain, and ran in from seven yards out. Carter booted the extra points for the 21-0 margin.

Salem bulldozed its way to a 27-0 cushion on its first possession in the second half. A Ryan-to-Fecteau bomb picked up 27 yards and Little added 14 on a run over left tackle. Ryan took the snap and booted, untouched, 19 yards for another score.

Mike Gallagher contributed a 15-yard touchdown run late in the third period and Craig Deroin added the conversion. Ryan's younger brother, sophomore Tom, directed the Witches in the final quarter and sped 66 yards on an option for another score. Carter kicked another conversion for the 42-0 final, although Salem was knocking on the door (2-yard line) again as time ran out.

Now . . . can Saugus make next Saturday a sequel — English II?

In that fight, the two players tried to kick each other. Bennett was also suspended for two games.

In addition, The Bruin was fined $200 on top of the automatic $100 fine he received for being thrown out of the game, after a hearing with NHL vice-president Brian O'Neill.

Time to relax and enjoy the fruits of his labor
... among which is the American League's Manager of the Year Award. George Bamberger of the Milwaukee Brewers was named this year's winner by United Press International yesterday, for guiding the Brewers to their best season in history.

Bamberger accepts unwanted award

NEW YORK (UPI) — George Bamberger didn't get his wish.

The 52-year-old manager of the Milwaukee Brewers said during the last weeks of the season that he had no desire to win the American League's Manager of the Year award.

"I respect the award, but I wouldn't want it," Bamberger said. "I'm going to be busy enough in the off-season without having to go to a bunch of banquets. I like compliments as much as anybody, but I don't need to hear them in front of 1,000 people."

"There are a lot of egomaniacs in this business, but I'm not one of them. No, I'd rather stay home with my family."

Well, sorry about that, George.

Because he did such a splendid job of guiding the Brewers to their best season in history, Bamberger has been named AL Manager of the Year by the United Press International.

Bamberger was an easy winner in the balloting of 30 UPI baseball correspondents from across the nation. He received 20 first-place votes to nine for Bob Lemon of the New York Yankees and one for Earl Weaver of Baltimore. Lemon, who took over as the Yankees' manager at mid-season and guided them to the world championship, won the award last year when he was with the Chicago White Sox.

In his first season as a manager after 10 seasons as pitching coach of the Baltimore Orioles, Bamberger led the Brewers to a 93-69 record and a third-place finish in the tough American League East Division.

A man of extreme candor and patience, Bamberger's strong suit as a manager is his ability to communicate.

"He always tried to make everything sound so positive," said pitcher Jerry Augustine. "Even when he has to do something negative, he makes it sound very, very positive. He has the perfect personality to be a manager."

Bamberger, though, thinks his role is overplayed.

"Nobody even knows what makes a good one. The only thing I'll say about me is that I can get along with people and have a lot of patience."

"Times are different. The kids today ... well, you can't yell at them. When I was a kid they yelled at me and I accepted it. Today they go into a shell if you do that and so you have to do a lot more talking to them. That's what they mean by communicating. Some guys can communicate and some can't. I think I was gifted to be able to talk to people."

Although he had no prior experience as a manager, Bamberger showed right from the start of spring training that he meant business. At a players meeting he told them point blank that they had "no respect in the American League." He set out to change that image and succeeded beyond the Milwaukee organization's wildest imagination.

"After trying everything and seeing it all go sour, this year has fulfilled my highest expectations," said owner Bud Selig. "It's like I'm in a different business."

60-Second SPORTS

• Boat sale: Lawyers are finalizing details on an agreement to allow Ted Turner's America's Cup syndicate to buy the 12-meter yacht's Courageous and Independence from the King's Point Fund by next week.

Turner's group is also considering a proposal to lease Independence to an English group which wants to use the yacht as a trial horse next summer to prepare for the 1980 races.

• Jet ill: Joe Klecko, an outstanding performer on the New York Jets' defensive line this season, has been hospitalized with gastroenteritis, but is expected to play against the Patriots Sunday.

Klecko was hospitalized Thursday complaining of stomach pains and released yesterday.

• Bronco busted: Denver wide receiver John Schultz, who suffered a hamstring injury a month ago, has been placed on the team's injured reserve list and is out for the season.

In his place the team activated rookie wide receiver Vince Kinney of Maryland. He will play in tomorrow's game against Seattle.

• Finley sells out: Charlie Finley has made a deal to sell the Oakland A's to a group in the Bay Area which plans to keep the team where it is. The price is reported to be in the neighborhood of $12 million.

"I'm willing and ready to sell," said Finley. "I'm convinced they have the money."

• McLendon leads: Mac McLendon, with a 12-under-par 132, holds a five-stroke lead going into today's third round of the $125,000 Pensacola Open.

His nearest competitors were second-year golfers Keith Fergus and D.A. Weiringer and nine-year veteran Mike Reesor, who had a 1-under 137.

• Yer out: Major league baseball's 62 umpires have withdrawn unfair labor practice charges against the club owners, which prompted a one-day strike in August.

The umpires' association walked out then because the owners wouldn't renegotiate their contract.

• Vitale rest: Detroit Pistons coach Dick Vitale sat out his team's game against San Francisco as a result of a one-game suspension levied against him by the NBA.

He had been suspended for "unsportsmanlike actions" after his ejection from Wednesday night's game with Cleveland, where he was cited for two attempts at charging referee John Borgia.

Lucas at home in Warrior win

He was the man nobody wanted.

John Lucas spent some frustrating moments before the season when he didn't know where he'd be playing this year. He had two very good seasons with Houston, then was sent to Golden State as compensation for the Rockets' signing of Rick Barry. The Warriors, however, weren't very satisfied with the deal despite getting some extra money along with the former NBA No. 1 draft pick.

Right now, though, the Warriors must be pretty happy with Lucas, who is only three days shy of his 25th birthday, nine years younger than Barry.

Lucas scored 16 points and handed out 13 assists as the Warriors walloped the defending NBA champion Washington Bullets 102-83 Friday night.

NHL

Blazing Flames still undefeated

The Atlanta Flames are going to lose a hockey game this season. They have to. The question is: When?

The unbeaten Flames, 6-0-2, rolled to their sixth straight victory Friday night by smashing the New York Islanders, 5-3, primarily behind the strength of one line.

With Guy Chouinard, Eric Vail and Bob MacMillan accounting for five goals and seven assists, Atlanta never really allowed the Islanders, a team suddenly beset with defensive problems, back in the game after taking a 3-1 first-period lead.

The Flames are also scoring goals — 48 in eight games — and Friday night was certainly no exception. Every time the Islanders threatened, back came the swarm of white shirts and a defenseless Billy Smith was not equal to the onslaught.

Soccer coaches knock all-star timing

By TED GRANT
Item Sports Correspondent

They're mad as hell and they're not gonna stand for it.

Four teams — Beverly, English, Danvers, and Salem — are currently vying for the Northeastern Conference soccer championship and the 10-per-cent qualifying standards set for a berth in the state tournament.

So the contending coaches have enough on their minds with just two precious games remaining in the schedule. They don't need additional distractions.

The pending date of the soccer All-Star game, being played against the Cape Ann League, has apparently supplied many additional distractions.

The game is set for next Saturday afternoon at Manning Bowl. That's the day after the final Conference game — Danvers at English — and two days before the opening round of the states.

The timing, say the coaches, leaves much to be desired.

"What's more important," asks Bill Foley, coach of league-leading Beverly, "the state tournament — which a team plays 18 games to reach — or an all-star game?"

The answer, he says, "is obvious."

And the contending coaches, when contacted by The Item last night, basically agree. The all-star game ranks a distant second.

"I was holding off comment on this until after this weekend," said Marblehead's Rod Pickard, coach of the NEC stars. "Because I figured the problem would be alleviated."

"With the games (yesterday), I thought Beverly would beat Salem to knock them out of contention. But Salem won (a 1-0 upset) to bunch everything closer."

Beverly currently leads the pack by one point after yesterday's results. Danvers croaked Gloucester 2-0 to pull into a 3-way tie with English and Salem (all 10-2-2, 22 points).

"This won't affect my team," said Pickard, "because we're out of it anyway. But if I was in it, I'd be resistant to let my kids play in the game for fear of injury. And if the other coaches are thinking that way — Beverly, English, Salem, and Danvers — then it's not going to be a fair representation of the Conference and I wouldn't be happy coaching the game."

"I can appreciate the problems of the contending teams," continued Pickard.

John Greene of Danvers makes no bones about his decision. "I will not let my kids play in this game if we qualify for the states," insists Greene, whose team, like English and Salem, leads three more points (a win and a tie) in the final two games to clinch the 10-per-cent quota.

"And the nine coaches present at our meeting (with Lynn Classical absent) agreed that they would not let their kids participate if they made the tournament," recalled Greene.

There lies yet another problem. According to the coaches, they agreed the game was to be scheduled for the following Saturday, Nov. 11.

"We voted 9-0 not to play the fourth," insists Foley.

"We owe it to the boys on the team and the Cape Ann League to put together our best team."

"This is not right. The Conference has come too far in my five years to let this happen. We're the class of the area in soccer now, and to have the game so soon after the season can only detract from the players' talents."

Greene agreed. "The kids haven't played together and that has to hurt. They need time to work together."

"Right now they have zero time for practice," said Dan Smith of Saugus, Pickard's assistant in the all-star game. "And this is a real slight to the boys involved."

"Friendships are developed and a respect for the kids they played against in the regular season," Smith continued. "Now what we're saying is go out and kick the hell around in the game; there'll be no togetherness."

He's an all-star.

...but will he play? For that matter, will any of the players named to the Northeastern Conference soccer all-star team, as was Marblehead's Lars Linger, play in the game scheduled for Manning Bowl next Saturday?

"Anyway, the top teams won't want to send their players to the game. They have the states on their minds, why take a chance on getting hurt?"

Two of the top teams' coaches have decided they will have their players participate, but neither Ken Noyes of English nor John Aucone of Salem are thrilled with the prospects.

"I'd talk it over with my kids," said Noyes. "They know their limitations better than I do. The only problem, obviously, is injury. But the games aren't played that way."

"However, if all the other teams won't play, perhaps we'd follow suit. But as of right now, I'm undecided," said Noyes.

Aucone's representatives will be on hand. "But I'm not particularly thrilled about it," he said. "I have agreed to play."

Aucone thought this was a dead issue. "I thought it was resolved," he said. "What has happened is a lack of communication between ourselves (coaches) and the athletic directors."

The soccer coordinator in the Conference, Ted Laubner of English, explained. "I know all about the coaches' 9-0 vote. But where they voted for the 11th was one thing, the ADs decided otherwise."

"And it was the duty of each AD to inform his coach of the switch."

Saugus coach Smith feels the switch was made strictly from a financial viewpoint. "We voted unanimously for the 11th," he said. "But the ADs are concerned that there will be no gate receipts."

"But now, it's scheduled for 5 o'clock between a football game and Saturday night out, so there isn't going to be any gate anyway."

Almost completely overlooked is controversial Headmasters' Rule 19, which prohibits participation in sporting events in the same day.

"That's why we won't be involved in the game," said Foley. "We have already agreed with Danvers to scrimmage that morning if we qualify for the states."

"And a scrimmage for my whole team is certainly more important than an all-star game for three boys. And besides, it wouldn't be fair to my team — which stands the best chance of any of the three teams I've had in a journey of winning it — to risk injury to three top players."

To a man, however, the coaches agreed the game must go on. "I will coach it if I'm told to," said Pickard. "Or if there's a threat that it will be discontinued, it's too valuable a show for the Conference to have it stopped."

"It is a tremendous game," said Noyes. "And I'd hate to see it not played just because of the inconvenient timing."

"It's our greatest showcase," added Smith. "And it's the growing sport. My only point is that if we're going to make the program, make it a good one."

Greene's final thoughts reflected those of all concerned. "I'm hoping it will be the 11th because I really don't think any of the teams are strong enough to get past the semi-finals."

"Then all our problems would be solved."

Creese goals help Danvers close in on lead

While many area coaches simmered over the upcoming Northeastern Conference All-Star game (see other story), which prompted Beverly coach Bill Foley's views that "at this point, none of the coaches care about the results of the game," there was a full state of soccer games played yesterday.

Danvers, by means of its 1-0 wipeout of Gloucester, climbed within one point of Beverly, which was upset by Salem 1-0.

Marblehead dumped Swampscott and Saugus sank Winthrop, both by identical 2-0 scores, to round out Conference action. Elsewhere, Lynnfield blanked Ipswich 3-0 and St. John's tied Wilmington 1-1.

Tom Creese connected for the hat trick to pace Danvers in what coach John Greene labeled, "a pretty easy game for us."

Creese had two in the first quarter and Joe Hines added another to put the Falcons up 3-0 in the first 10 minutes. Ray Osgood made it 4-0 in the third and Sean Sullivan made it five before Creese completed the trick and the day's scoring late in the final period.

Greene alternated goalies, with Mike Skiolis and Greg Curtis combining on just five Gloucester attempts.

Richard Malsten scored both Marblehead goals, both in the first period, to lead the Headers over their arch-enemy. Coach Rod Pickard also chose to switch goalies, with Chris Robinson recording nine saves to six for Chris Haskell.

Dan Tillinghast converted a corner kick from Larry Spence to give goaltender Dave Dwyer all the support he'd need, but Mike O'Hearn added a third-period goal just to be safe as Saugus improved its record to 9-4-3, two points behind the pack.

For Dwyer, it was shutout No. 8.

After a scoreless opening quarter, Lynnfield came up with two second-period goals by Jim Wilkinson and Bob Hawkes and a third-period job by Arthur Barrett to lift Lynnfield to 10-1-1, one point behind league-leading Mascocomet in the Cape Ann League. The two meet Tuesday.

And finally, Bob Bradley's goal in the second period gave St. John's a short-lived 1-0 lead, but the Prep hung on for the tie, mainly thanks to the work of goalie Jeff Perkins, who stopped four point-blank shots to give the Eagles only their third non-loss in 15 starts. St. John's is 9-13-1. TED GRANT

Lobsters call it a day—for at least a season

BOSTON (UPI) — For the past two years, the Boston Lobsters had been a model franchise in World Team Tennis.

They had success on the court, including the best regular season record in the league last year. They had a star-studded lineup featuring Wimbledon champ Martina Navratilova and Australian greats Roy Emerson and Tony Roche.

And although they weren't making money, they were losing less and less each year and were one of the most stable franchises in the league. Their attendance was rising each year, and they were coming off their best season ever.

Now, they are gone, perhaps for good, but at least for next year.

President Robert Kraft decided to suspend operations in 1979 in protest over failure of other WTT franchises to spend the money to sign the game's top players.

"The commitment was just not there from the other teams in the league to bring in the top players we feel World Team Tennis needs to survive," Kraft told a news conference. "The serious intent is not there, and the only way to assure viability of the league is to take a hard stand."

Kraft said the Lobsters management will watch what the league does next year, then decide about rejoining. The New York Apple, also a stable franchise, have closed shop for similar reasons.

"While we are satisfied with the progress we've made in Boston, we feel the progress would be stymied if we could not guarantee top quality players coming into Boston," Kraft said.

Kraft said the leave of absence also was prompted by the lack of an adequately sized, air-conditioned arena in which to play. The team played its home games at Boston University, where the seating capacity is just over 4,500.

Mark Stevens (80) of English puts on the team but runs into a roadblock in the second Salem guard Mark Osgood during last night's game at Manning Bowl. Jim Hunt of English (41) tries to help out with the block. English lost 42-0 to the Wilches.

English tennis a winner

The English High tennis team assured itself of at least a .500 season yesterday by downing Marblehead 3-2. The win gave English a 7-5 mark while the Magicians are now 9-4.

Elsewhere in the Northeastern Conference, Winthrop topped Saugus and Salem beat Swampscott by 3-2 scores.

In Lynn, Deedee Spyropoulos got English started quickly, defeating Robyn Sahagian 7-5, 6-2. Marblehead's Yvette Dolleman stopped Jane Hadson 6-3, 6-2 to knot the score, but Mary Doherty of English beat Patty Cohen 6-0, 6-2.

Marblehead's Jeanne Sylvester and Kathy O'Connor teamed in first doubles to down Debbie Roy and Maria Masucci 6-4, 6-3. In the second match, Judy Bragdon and Barbara Yee gave English the winning margin by beating Judy Mack and Joy Pasten 6-1, 6-4, 6-4.

Winthrop took all three singles matches to up-end Saugus and pick up its second win of the season.

Rose Guarino defeated Cindy Thomas 7-5, 6-4, Joyce

Kelly beat Donna Emms 6-4, 6-3, and Dodi Rabinovitch topped Debbie Cosco 6-0, 1-6, 6-3.

In doubles, Saugus' Lisa Jaross and Denise Beecher beat Terry Sisto and Mary Beth Hinchley 6-2, 6-1 in the first match. Then, Lenore Cullen and Janice Bowes duplicated their teammates' effort by beating Judy Behm and Nancy Harrison 6-1, 6-0.

An injury-depleted Swampscott team saw its record drop to 6-7 as a result of yesterday's loss. Big Blue coach Ralph Earle is without four singles players.

In the match yesterday, Swampscott's Cindy Shribman started things right for the Big Blue, downing Karen Theriault 6-2, 6-0. Salem took the next two singles, Sara Leger defeating Danielle Whittier 6-3, 6-4, and Wendy DeRoin topping Lisa Gilman 6-4, 6-4, 6-2.

In doubles, Cori Connor and Kris Madden edged Elena Anton and Darlene Gioacchini 6-2, 6-4, to knot the score at 2-2. The Wilches' Kristen Anton and Debbie Schaeffer clinched the match for the visitors, beating Kim Christie and Grace Calamita 6-3, 6-2.

Swampscott shooters blank Salem

A balanced scoring attack and the shutout goaltending of Sharon Dunphy sparked Swampscott past Salem 3-0 in Northeastern Conference field hockey action yesterday.

Elsewhere, Marblehead trimmed English 2-1, while in a non-league game, Lynnfield edged Manchester 2-1.

At Swampscott, Sarra Newhall gave the Big Blue the edge early, scoring in the first half. In the second stanza, Sherren Granese scored her 10th goal of the season and Martha Lipka got her first to clinch the win.

Dunphy stopped six shots in recording her seventh shutout of the season. "She made a couple of excellent saves," coach Martha Cray said.

Marblehead's Ann Gosselin scored from a scramble in front of English goalie Linda McGuinness with 30 seconds left in the game to provide the edge for the Magicians.

"In aggressive fashion she pushed it past the goalie's hand," explained Marblehead coach Liz Ruhl.

Dawn Baribeau played well offensively and defensively for English, while Flo Green was a star for the Magicians.

Cheryl Viglietta and Nancy Freni scored in the first half for Lynnfield and the Pioneers held on to improve their record to 6-3-2.

Satisfied Bruins come home

TORONTO (UPI) — Boston Bruins coach Don Cherry says he couldn't be happier about his team's play as a six-game, 11-day road trip winds to an end with a contest tonight against the Maple Leafs.

"I'm ecstatic. The record, (3-1-1), seven of a possible 10 points on a long tough road trip without so many players is tough to believe," Cherry said.

The Bruins have been without the services of defenseman Brad Park (knee surgery), Mike Milbury (strained knee) and Dick Redmond (back).

"We don't have an injury list, we have an epidemic.

I couldn't believe we could do this well without Park, Milbury and Redmond," Cherry said.

"Maybe we thrive on adversity," said forward Terry O'Reilly.

Gilles Gilbert will start in goal against the Leafs, after a one-game rest due to a collarbone bruise. Backup Jim Petrie played well in the Wednesday night 2-1 tie at Minnesota.

Cherry also praised defenseman Al Sims, who was called up from Rochester when the injury jinx began.

Rice wants lifetime deal

BOSTON (UPI) — Slagger Jim Rice says he wants to stay in Boston and play for the Red Sox, and that's what he'll be doing for the next two years unless he is traded.

Rice's contract with the Red Sox runs through 1980, his option year. But his lawyer, Tony Pencchia, wants the Red Sox to sign his client to a lifetime contract as soon as possible.

Pencchia claims the Red Sox have made it a policy not to discuss contracts during the season. He has indicated the next off-season would be too late to talk about a new pact for Rice, who led the majors this past season in most hitting and slugging categories.

"I feel the Red Sox will give me what I ask for," Rice said Friday, shortly before leaving to visit his parents in Anderson, S.C. "I'm not worried. I'm not even thinking about it. All I'm thinking about is next year and bettering my performance of last year."

Pencchia, a Providence, R.I., attorney who doubles as Rice's golfing partner, said the outfielder-designated hitter wants to stay in Boston. But, he added the Red Sox should start negotiating soon before it is too late.

Rice also said he would be disappointed if the Red Sox traded Dwight Evans. Rumors have Evans going to the Twins for right-hander Dave Goltz.

"In my opinion, they shouldn't trade Evans. He's the best right-fielder in the American League. If he's traded, they're going to put me there, and I don't want to play right field. Why trade him? The guy is much better than me," Rice said.

Sufferin' Celtics need bench help

BOSTON (UPI) — The Boston Celtics look for help from the bench tonight as they conclude a five-game road swing by taking on the New Jersey Nets in Piscataway, N.J.

The Celtics, 1-5, have lost three straight and are tied with Chicago and Detroit for the worst record in the National Basketball Association. Coach Tom Sanders has moved center Dave Cowens to forward, but the experiment showed little promise in the last game, a 132-109 pasting by the San Antonio Spurs.

"I think the new combination worked out fairly well, but more than that, we're trying to get some push from the bench," Sanders said. "Obviously, I think the guys are ready to pop on somebody, whatever that means."

The starting lineup features Dennis Awrey in the pivot with Cowens and Billy Knight up front. Jo Jo White and newcomer Chris Ford will start in the backcourt.

Sanders is looking for bench help from Nate Archibald, Cedric Maxwell, Jeff Judkins, Marvin Barnes and Don Chaney.

Sanders said he sees no similarities between the 1-5 start this year and last year's 1-3 opening.

"Certain undercurrents last year were tough to deal with," said Sanders, who started last year as an assistant in Tom Heinsohn. "Spurts have been good this year, things just haven't been clicking for us. We haven't played good basketball."

Another Swampscott victory

Ben Pitman scored two touchdowns, on a 40-yard interception return and a 10-yard run, to lead the Swampscott eighth graders past Salem 34-8 yesterday.

Also for Swampscott, quarterback Jack Whittier scored on a five-yard quarterback sneak, halfback Steven Anderson lalled on a 50-yard kickoff return, and Dan Leone caught a 15-yard TD pass from Whittier.

Matt Lacey was outstanding on defense for the 5-0 Baby Blue.

Jets shoot for top

United Press International
A pre-season computer poll predicted the New York Jets and the New York Giants would win a combined total of two games—one apiece—this season.

Well, don't look now but both clubs are 5-3 and can grab a share of their division leads with victories Sunday.

The Jets can pull even with New England and Miami in the AFC East by defeating the red-hot Patriots at Foxboro, while the Giants, who visit New Orleans, will need help from lowly San Francisco to draw a share of the top spot in the NFC East with Washington and Dallas.

The Jets have won three in a row to move to 5-3 despite losing starting quarterback Richard Todd with a broken collarbone Sept. 24. Sub. Matt Robinson has won three of four starts since then, blending the running talents of Kevin Long and Scott Dierking with the pass catching of Wesley Walker and Derrick Gaffney.

But New England, which got off to a rocky start, has won six straight and look over undisputed possession of first place last Sunday with a 33-24 victory over Miami. The Patriots' major weapon has been Steve Grogan, a strong-armed passer who many consider to be the best running quarterback in the NFL.

With Dallas having lost to Minnesota Thursday night, Washington could take over sole possession of first place in the NFC East if it can beat San Francisco.

Should the Redskins get upset, however, and the revitalized Giants beat the Saints, the NFC East will have three teams tied for the lead with 6-3 records.

The Giants, who upset Washington, 17-6, last week, expect a tough opponent in the 4-4 Saints, winners over Los Angeles on the West Coast last weekend.

In other Sunday games, the San Diego at Oakland, San Francisco at Washington, Denver at Seattle, Tampa Bay at Green Bay, Baltimore at Miami, Buffalo at Cleveland, Houston at Cincinnati, Kansas City at Pittsburgh, Detroit at Chicago and St. Louis at Philadelphia.

On Monday night, Atlanta hosts Los Angeles in its final effort to hold down the runaway Rams in the NFC West Division.

A three-way tie for the lead is also possible in the AFC West. If Oakland loses to San Diego and the Seahawks upset the Broncos, then Denver, Oakland and Seattle will all be 5-4.

If Tampa Bay can defeat Green Bay, the NFC Central Division will tighten up. A victory by Tampa Bay would give the Bucs a 5-4 record and put them into a second-place tie with Minnesota, only a game behind the Packers.

Brown 'bad news' for HC

Holy Cross football coach, Neil Wheelwright says Brown University's team could end up being the Bad News Bears for Crusader fans.

And in this case, the bad news spells defeat for Holy Cross. "We think Brown has better overall balance than any team we've faced," said Wheelwright, whose club is 5-0 with wins over Army and Air Force. "We have an awful lot of respect for their offense and defense, we think they are the best we've seen as an overall unit."

"To beat Brown, we'll have to be a better football team than we've been all season," he said.

Brown won last year's encounter 44-13, and many of the same faces will be lining up along the scrimmage line Saturday in front of ABC cameras at Providence.

Brown coach John Anderson contends players' names are the only similarity between last year's Crusaders and this year's edition.

Winthrop looms as contender for Conference championship

A glance at the Northeastern Conference schedule shows the Classical Rams perched on top with a 4-1 record. In fact, Classical is the only school in the Conference with only one loss. Five have two defeats, three have four.

However, Classical's lead is shaky since Winthrop now looms as a strong contender. Saugus still is in contention despite being upset by Gloucester last week.

For Saugus and Winthrop their weekend games will be the seventh of the NEC schedule, while the remaining eight schools will be playing their sixth game. Saugus still is given a good chance as defending champions to repeat due to the fact that it has no contending teams to face in the remaining games, while Classical and Winthrop clash at Manning Bowl on Saturday, Nov. 4.

Upsets seem to be the rule every week and there is no reason for not one happening this weekend. The schedule today is as follows: Classical at Beverly, Saugus at Marblehead, Swampscott at Gloucester and Winthrop at Danvers. English played Salem last night at the Bowl. The result of the game is listed on the sport pages today.

Other games scheduled today: Bishop Fenwick will be seeking its seventh straight win at Dom Savio at 10 a.m.; Lynn Tech at Greater Lawrence at 10:30 a.m.; St. John's Prep at BCH; Peabody at Medford and Revere at Everett. St. Mary's plays Matignon at Manning Bowl tomorrow.

Briarcliff Lodge, formerly "The Chateau," condemned in 1974 as not meeting state safety standards, will hold open house Tuesday night from 8 to 10 to give the public an opportunity to observe the rehabilitation achieved by Lynn Tech students (boys and girls).

Community Director Edward T. Calnan will be in charge of the program. It was through his efforts that the project got off the ground since CX funds financed the project with an appropriation of $80,000.

Calnan is overwhelmed and delighted with the rehabilitation and praises the Lynn Tech students for a job well done. He says: "They (the students) made a great contribution and they also learned several trade subjects not on the school curriculum."

The guest list for the event includes: Local and state public officials, Mayor Antonio J. Marino, and members of the Lynn Park Commission, School Board and City Council. A large crowd is expected to participate in the program.

Nick Consoles is said: St. Mary's High football team is having problems winning this season and that is making him feel a little uncomfortable in discussing schoolboy football with him.

There is good reason for that. Consoles is not only a graduate of St. Mary's, but one of its outstanding football greats, which he seldom mentions.

Consoles is no longer a Lynn resident, but professes a great love for the city. He maintains his insurance business here and commutes daily from Topsfield, where he lives with his wife and five children.

"I keep fully informed with the happening of the city and at St. Mary's because my business is here," he said. "I feel sad about the football situation at St. Mary's High. Things will turn around for the better. I know it will," he added.

He continued: "I would like to become more involved with the high school athletic program, but I can't neglect my business. I have five children, the oldest 17." "Any of them going to high school?" we asked. He replied: "Four," and then added: "the oldest a senior". Asked about the others, he smiled and answered: "One a freshman, another a sophomore and the third a junior."

Consoles was an outstanding football player at St. Mary's. He was rated among the top and figured prominently in one of the greatest upset victories of the school's football history. He was picked on many All-Scholastic football teams as quarterback.

The sensational play came in a game between the Marist and Lawrence Central at Lawrence on Sept. 21, 1951. St. Mary's was trailing 12-13 with 40 seconds left to play in the fourth quarter. Consoles tossed a 60-yard pass into the waiting arms of Billy Kennedy (now the Rev. William J. Kennedy SJ) for a 19-13 win to snap a three-year Lawrence winning streak.

Consoles was accepted by Wake Forest in 1952 when he graduated from St. Mary's and played on the college football team through 1956, serving as captain in his senior year. He was rated the top college passer that year. He turned down many professional football offers to take additional courses and serve as Wake Forest freshman football coach.

In 1962 he was named head football coach at St. Mary's

High and served five years when he retired because his business was expanding and needed more attention. He said: "I feel that with my family and business growing I cannot do the coaching job that should be done and it is with deep regret I must resign from a job I love". He said football coaching has been a way of life with him, and that he enjoyed the job for the five years. Also that it was a difficult decision for him to make.

"St. Mary's will bounce back, I am sure," he said as he left toward his insurance business establishment.

A Classical High 1952 graduate, who now lives in Miami Fla., attending the Classical-Swampscott game last week, lauded the excellent appearance of Manning Bowl and the aluminum seats.

Charles Goodman said everything broke right for him since events he had wished to attend occurred about the same time. He explained that he returned to Lynn to attend the combined 1952-53 Classical classes reunion at the Colonial in Lynnfield and the Dolphins-Patriots game was taking place the following day.

He revealed he also got a pretty good deal to make the trip by plane. He elaborated: "A flight from Miami to Boston and return, football tickets to the Patriots game, and a breakfast. All for $129. Not too bad."

Goodman, a 1956 University of Miami graduate, is a certified public accountant with offices in Miami. (Ed note: Just wondering about Charlie's trip home with the Dolphins losing.)

Superintendent James L. McGuinness and Deputy Superintendent Edward J. Johns Jr. of the Lynn Public School System, attending the Classical-Swampscott football game didn't confine all their conversation to the exciting game. Their discussions deviated on subjects concerning, Shoes, Ships and Sealing Wax.

Harold O. Zimman, former Classical player and football coach, has returned from Israel where he attended a tennis tournament. Zimman is publisher of the U.S. Lawn Association magazine along with several other sports publications. He attended the Swampscott-Classical game and the next day was at the Dartmouth-Harvard game where he supervised the distribution of the souvenir programs. Zimman now lives in Marblehead with business offices in Lynn.

Hunting rifle carries nostalgia

If you have a son, and are a hunter, I'm sure he will want to borrow one of your guns. To any of my four sons, when they became old enough to hunt I gave permission to borrow shotgun or rifle. In addition to safety precautions, I always felt like saying: I wish I could convey to you, for your enjoyment, the memories that are attached to this faithful friend of many years. It is more than a smooth-working mechanism.

I wish I could loan you the smell of the marshes lying golden in the sun as the tide creeps into every pothole and creek. The vision of dawn stealing up over the mountains on a crackling, cold morn lighting first the mountain peaks to the west and sliding down hillside into the valleys as I have seen them along with this gun.

Inside \ Outdoors with Ernie Tucker

My finger has pressed the trigger and for me, and me alone, it has spoken. I have looked along that rifle barrel, then eased the weapon down as the fawn deer, hardly out of his summer spots, examined me quizzically, wrinkled his nose, and trotted off. I wish I could loan you the memories of silent nights beneath stars that seemed so close you might touch them; of frosty mornings getting out of a warm sleeping bag; the aroma of steaming coffee, sizzling bacon and pungent birch smoke.

The companionship of many friends who have since been called home to hunt no more. When you use my gun you should remember Sandy, a carefree cocker spaniel who loved woods and fields, who knew that when the shotgun went, he was to go along, too.

I have never used my gun as an excuse to sit in a deer camp to play poker or drink. It has led me to enjoy nature's vast storehouse of secrets, and through these to grope for Nature's God. May you use it in the same spirit; not the desire alone to kill; may it be the means of leading you into closer communion with the great, clean, and wholesome out-of-doors.

Long ago the sons had guns of their own. Now some of their sons have also purchased guns with which to hunt. When I see the grandsons hastily dress and start out at dawn's first light up the mountain trail, I know just how they feel. I have trod that path before.

Old guns, old fishing rods, old fishing hats and clothes all carry memories. They may be beat and battered, but the owners wouldn't part with them for brand new ones. All too soon it is time to let the "young bucks" bay on the trail building up a storehouse of memories. You can loan your well-used firearm to a son, teach him all you know about the hunt, safety and the way of the wild. Memories he will collect along the way on his own.

God loves even a Communist

Isaiah 55: 6-7 "Seek the Lord while he may be near. Call upon Him while he is near. Let the wicked forsake his way, and the unrighteous man his thoughts; and let him return to the Lord, and He will have compassion on him; and to our God, for He will abundantly pardon. For My thoughts are not your thoughts, neither are your ways my ways," declares the Lord. (New American Standard)

On Jan. 1, 1973, at age 52, Sergei Kourdakov was killed. He was then living in Los Angeles, Calif. but had recently escaped from the Soviet Union via a Russian trawler, jumping into the freezing arctic waters off British Columbia. Sergei was no ordinary man. As a Russian Naval officer in training, it was his assignment to persecute Christians in the most vigorous manner possible, which he did with a relish. In his book, "The Persecutor," Sergei describes one of the scenes in which he and his hand-picked men smashed up a gathering of Believers, as they were called, in a remote part of some woods in the village of Elizovo.

"Suddenly I jumped to my feet and yelled loudly, 'Alright let's go! Now!' Immediately my men exploded from behind the bushes racing down the hill, clubs raised, hitting the sandy shore of the river at full speed. We smashed into the startled group of Believers, knocking them sprawling onto the river. No one remained standing after the first running charge. Knocked into the water and stunned with surprise, they floated about as we went after them one by one.

"I came in behind my men. By then the screams of Believers began to rise. A woman's voice cried, 'Oh dear Lord, no. No!' Whoever it was soon stopped crying, letting out just one more piercing scream as one of my men got to her. That beautiful mountain scene had erupted into a wild, swirling mass of hands, feet and clubs, splashing water, and the agonized cries of the Believers."

One Layman's View by Warren C. Hyam

Sergi described how they had smashed skulls with clubs and in another case he said, "Their prayers angered me. 'Shot them up!' I ordered, then reached down into the water and scooped up a big handful of sand. Jerking open the mouth of one of the Believers, I rammed the sand into his mouth, packing it full until he couldn't pray. The other guys started doing the same with sand and mud and the praying stopped. "In another case one man had his mouth open, praying, when I hit him full in the face with my fist and knocked most of his teeth out, cutting my knuckles. I cursed him violently as the blood streamed down his chin."

This was the kind of unofficial action the Soviet Union was taking against Christians and Sergei loved it — until one day it began to change. It came about during one of their raids. It was the usual bone-crunching bloody time in which Sergei said "The room was strewn with broken bodies, broken chairs, tables, dishes, all in a heap." During the raid one of his men, Victor Matveyev, grabbed for a young girl and threw her against a wall where she fell semiconscious. Victor turned and said, "I bet the idea of God went flying out of her head." But Sergei thought, "She's a real beautiful girl. I wished I had met her under better circumstances." Three nights later in another raid in another place he found her again, among a group of young people. This time he beat her with his hands until her backside was a mass of raw flesh, after which he pushed her off the table and she collapsed on the floor. But Sergei was getting confused. He said, "I could understand foolish old people who were infected with religion before communism, but young people were believing in God. These were people my age; my generation. It baffled me."

This young man and the girl, whose name was Natasha, what was it that made them endure all this hardship? Sergei had to know. He became less and less enthusiastic in the raids on the Believers until it became noticeable. He pleaded that he was overworked in his studies at the Naval Academy as well as other duties. He needed time to think. One day as he was burning Christian literature he slipped some into his pocket to read later. That night at the first opportunity he had, he opened up those pieces of paper and began to read them. Jesus was talking and teaching someone how to pray. He read on. This certainly was no anti-state material. It was how to be a better person and how to forgive those who do you wrong. Suddenly, the words leaped out of those pages and into his heart. He read on, engrossed in the kind words of Jesus. This was exactly the opposite of what he had expected.

He said later, "My lack of understanding, which had been like blinders on my eyes, left me right then, and the words bit deeply into my being. It was as though somebody were in the room with me, teaching me those words and what they said. They made a profound impact on me. I read them again and again, then sat thinking, my mind lost in the wonder of it all. So this is what Natasha believed."

From that day on Sergei was never the same. That change eventually led him to jump from his ship and swim to Canada. It seemed an impossible task in freezing waters but God was with him. It seemed all the more incredible that he survived, since he was in the water for five hours. He prayed all during the ordeal, and while he didn't completely understand what was happening, he knew that God was going to spare him. He was taken in by some fishermen and after negotiations he was allowed to stay in Canada.

After he received teaching and training he began to speak to Christian groups about his life. He had been threatened many times and he knew he was being followed so he bought a gun for protection. Sergei had said that if anything happened to him it would appear to be an accident. He was killed that January. It was ruled accidental.

God had a plan for Sergei and it was carried out. As our scripture says, "And let him return to the Lord and he will have compassion on him; and to our God, for He will abundantly pardon."

Lynn Hospital again accredited

LYNN — Lynn Hospital has again been accredited by the Joint Commission on Accreditation of Hospitals, according to John A. Harrison, hospital director.

This accreditation, which covers from 1978 to 1980, is the result of an on-site survey made by field representatives of the Joint Commission's Hospital Accreditation Program. Accreditation indicates that this facility has chosen to operate according to standards set by the commission and that the facility has, in the main, met these standards.

The standards, published as the Accreditation Manual for Hospitals, set forth optimal achievable goals of excellence against which a facility can measure itself and be measured by the commission's survey.

Lynn Hospital is one of approximately 4,800 general hospitals throughout the United States that have earned this recognition. There are approximately 1,150 hospitals in the United States.

The commission's accreditation surveys are voluntary. It is not legally necessary for a hospital to be accredited, but health care facilities have sought accreditation because it represents a benchmark of quality that is higher than governmental licensure alone. The chief aim of the Hospital Accreditation Program, one of four such programs under the commission umbrella, is to help hospitals in their pursuit of excellence and thereby provide a higher quality of care to patients. The program also seeks to recognize, and to identify for the public, those facilities which meet its standards.

"We are pleased with the two-year accreditation decision because it is the maximum term and indicates substantial compliance with commission standards," said Harrison. "Lynn Hospital voluntarily undertakes to participate in this process to assure quality care for our patients."

dear Abby

A $4,000 Question

DEAR ABBY: We are the parents of six children, 6 through 16. We have told all our children that if they are interested in furthering their education after school, we will give them each $1,000 a year toward their education.

Our eldest son is a freshman in college. He works part-time and summers to help pay for his education, and he also takes advantage of our $1,000. (I have to brag a bit—he made a grade point of 4.0 his first semester.)

Our problem is our second child, a daughter. She will graduate from high school next June. Despite years of counseling, lots of love and our best efforts, she is a rebel. She's been in all kinds of trouble from shoplifting to drugs and alcohol. She says as soon as she turns 16, she's splitting and wants no part of college.

My husband thinks that when she leaves we should give her the $4,000 we would have given her for a college education so that in years to come she can't say, "You never gave me the same chance you gave the others."

I strongly disagree. We have already spent a lot of money on her that we didn't spend on the others. Besides, I think giving her money would do her more harm than good.

We would appreciate the opinion of an outsider.

DEAR MOTHER: I agree with you. To give your rebellious daughter money before she's able to handle it might do her more harm than good. Your children are being offered $1,000 a year toward a college education—not to spend as they wish.

Step-by-step to pizza

SAUSAGE PIZZA

- 1 package active dry yeast
- ¾ cup warm water (110 degrees)
- ¾ cup packaged biscuit mix
- Cooking oil or olive oil
- 1 pound Italian sausage
- 1 16-ounce can tomatoes
- 8 ounces mozzarella cheese, thinly sliced and torn in pieces
- 1 8-ounce can tomato paste
- 2 cloves garlic, minced
- 1 tablespoon dried oregano, crushed
- 1 tablespoon dried basil, crushed
- ¼ cup grated parmesan or romano cheese
- (Makes two 12-inch pizzas)

Step 1: In mixing bowl soften the yeast in warm water (110 degrees). Add the package biscuit mix stirring in with a wooden spoon.

Measure biscuit mix by lightly spooning it into a dry measure. Do not pack or tap it; just level with a spatula.

Step 2: Vigorously beat the dough mixture with a wooden spoon for 2 minutes. The texture of the beaten dough should be similar to that shown (Illustration A).

Step 3: Turn out dough onto a lightly floured surface (a pastry cloth works well). Sprinkle surface of dough with a little additional biscuit mix or all-purpose flour. Knead 25 strokes. To knead, fold the dough over and push down with the heel of the hand, curving your fingers over the dough. Give the dough a quarter turn, then fold over and push down again. Dough should have a smooth consistency, as shown (Illustration B).

Step 4: Divide the dough into two equal portions. On a lightly floured surface, roll each half into a 12-inch circle. Again, a floured pastry cloth works especially well.

Step 5: Place each of the dough circles on a greased pizza pan or baking sheet. Crimp the edges by pinching dough between fingers, as shown (Illustration C).

Step 6: Using a pastry brush, brush each dough circle with a little cooking oil or olive oil. If you do not have a pastry brush, use a folded piece of paper toweling.

Step 7: Remove sausage casing, if present. In skillet break sausage into bits with a wooden spoon. Cook over low heat about 10 minutes or till meat is lightly browned, stirring occasionally to brown meat evenly. Drain off excess fat.

Step 8: Drain the tomatoes, reserving ¼ cup of the juice for use in the sauce. If desired, use a colander or sieve to drain the tomatoes.

Cut up tomatoes and spoon evenly over the two pizza crusts. Sprinkle with some salt and pepper.

Step 9: Top tomatoes with the mozzarella, dividing between the two pizzas. Spoon half of the browned sausage over each pizza, distributing it as evenly as possible.

Step 10: To make pizza sauce, combine the tomato paste, reserved tomato juice, garlic, oregano, and basil; mix well. Spread evenly over the two pizzas. Sprinkle generously with salt and pepper. Scatter about ¼ cup of the parmesan or romano cheese over each pizza.

Bake in 425-degree oven for about 15 minutes or till crusts are golden.

To serve, cut into wedges using a pizza wheel, sharp knife or kitchen shears.

Tut book reads on toes

Tutankhamun, The Unsold Story, by Thomas Hoving.

(Simon and Schuster, $12.95)

During his 10-year tenure as director of the Metropolitan Museum of Art, 1967-77, Thomas Hoving seemed to revel in controversy.

His book about Tutankhamun—acutely timed for the King Tut exhibition at the met starting in December—reads on a lot of toes and could prove an embarrassment to the museum.

While helping organize the King Tut show, Hoving went through the Met's files on Howard Carter, the famed discoverer of Tutankhamun's tomb in 1922, and Carter's better, Lord Carnarvon.

He discovered that the two men were not the figures of re-thude they have been portrayed.

While giving them full credit for their discovery he also presents evidence that:

—Carter removed some objects from the tomb and added them to his and Carnarvon's personal collections. An apparent attempt by Carter to split away an important head of Tutankhamun in a wine case was discovered but hushed up.

—Carnarvon and Carter, together with the Earl's daughter and another British archaeologist, entered the inner chambers of the tomb secretly at night without waiting as agreed for an Egyptian official as witnesses.

—Carnarvon secretly agreed to let the Met have some of the Tutankhamun treasures which he expected to get from the Egyptian authorities. (He never got any; all his estate got was a cash grant to cover costs of the excavation.)

In return, the Met got the State Department to put pressure on the Egyptian authorities to give Carter and Carnarvon special treatment.

All this is reprehensible. But it is nothing compared to what happened in other digs in Egypt before and after.

Though Hoving's discoveries put the record straight, they also reflect poorly on the two long-dead Englishmen. Even his tribute to Carter as "the last and greatest Egyptian adventurer" is a backhanded slap.

"The Unsold Story" also will embarrass the Met because, according to Hoving, it owns a number of works of art, purchased from Carnarvon's and Carter's estates, which probably were purloined from King Tut's tomb.

Work is cheap. Taxes aren't.

Your next Congressman has to deliver more than promises of tax reform... he has to know how to get the job done.

During his six consecutive terms as Peabody's Mayor, Nick Mavroules has kept his city's full value property tax rate under control... a tax rate that currently ranks as the 4th lowest among all cities in the state... while the city has shown a remarkable increase in assessed valuation of over 300%.

In fact, in nearly every important area affecting the property taxpayer and wage-earner, Nick Mavroules' record demonstrates superior performance as a public administrator.

That's the kind of background your next Congressman needs to work effectively at the

It takes the strong effort needed to get rid of the waste in government spending, the red tape and mismanaged bureaucracies.

Understanding the effects Federal action will have on our local municipal governments.

It takes the experience that comes from years of tax management.

This year, you can vote for a promise... or you can vote for a man who's proven that he can get the job done.

Nick Mavroules is your voice for a change.

Nick Mavroules can get the job done.
On Nov. 7th let your voice be heard.
